for a better life close the gaps we all want to make a difference but just as you need to put on your own oxygen mask before helping other passengers on an airplane getting your own life together is the first step to making a positive impact in the world franklin covey cofounder hyrum smith shows that what stops us are gaps between where we are and where we want to be the first is the beliefs gap between what we believe to be true and what is actually true the second is the values gap between what we value most in life and what we actually spend our life doing the third is the time gap between what we plan to do each day and what we actually get done smith offers a practical blueprint that we all can use to recognize and close each of these three gaps and illustrates how it can be done through inspiring true stories the 3 gaps provides the concepts and the tools needed to establish a solid foundation from which you can help make the world a better place we hear plenty about the widening income gap between the rich and the poor in america and about the expanding distance separating the haves and the have nots but when detailing the many things that the poor have not we often overlook the most critical their health the poor die sooner blacks die sooner and poor urban blacks die sooner than almost all other americans in nearly four decades as a doctor at hospitals serving some of the poorest communities in chicago david a ansell md has witnessed firsthand the lives behind these devastating statistics in the death gap he gives a grim survey of these realities drawn from observations and stories of his patients while the contrasts and disparities among chicago s communities are particularly stark the death gap is truly a nationwide epidemic as ansell shows there is a thirty five year difference in life expectancy between the healthiest and wealthiest and the poorest and sickest american neighborhoods if you are poor where you live in america can dictate when you die it doesn t need to be this way such divisions are not inevitable ansell calls out the social and cultural arguments that have been raised as ways of explaining or excusing these gaps and he lays bare the structural violence the racism economic exploitation and discrimination that is really to blame inequality is a disease ansell argues and we need to treat and eradicate it as we would any major illness to do so he outlines a vision that will provide the foundation for a healthier nation for all inequality is all around us and often the distance between high and low life expectancy can be a matter of just a few blocks but geography need not be destiny urges ansell in the death gap he shows us how we can face this national health crisis head on and take action against the circumstances that rob people of their dignity and their lives the world we live in is hugely unequal people in a better socioeconomic position do not only lead more comfortable lives but also longer and healthier lives this is true not only in the poorer parts of the world but also in the richest countries including the advanced welfare states of western europe which have successfully pushed back poverty and other forms of material disadvantage why are health inequalities systematically higher rates of disease disability and premature death among people with a lower level of education occupation or income so persistent how can we expect to reduce this when it persists even in the most advanced states written by a leading figure in public health this book looks to answer these questions by taking a broad critical look at the scientific evidence surrounding the explanation of health inequalities including recent findings from the fields of epidemiology sociology psychology economics and genetics it concludes that a simplistic view in which health inequalities are a direct consequence of social inequality does not tell us the full story drawing upon a unique series of studies covering 30 european countries and more than three decades of observations it shows that health inequalities are partly driven by autonomous forces that are difficult to counteract such as educational expansion increased social mobility and rapid but differential health improvements finally the book explores how we might use these new findings to continue our efforts to build a healthier and more equal future offering a truly multidisciplinary perspective and an accessible writing style health inequalities is an indispensable resource for health researchers professionals and policy makers as well as for social scientists interested in inequality
