offering the first systematic overview of modern and contemporary chinese literature from a translation studies perspective this handbook provides students researchers and teachers with a context in which to read and appreciate the effects of linguistic and cultural transfer in chinese literary works translation matters it always has of course but more so when we want to reap the benefits of intercultural communication in many universities chinese literature in english translation is taught as if it had been written in english as a result students submit what they read to their own cultural expectations they do not read in translation and do not attend to the protocols of knowing engagements and contestations that bind literature and society to each other the bloomsbury handbook of modern chinese literature in translation squarely addresses this pedagogical lack organised in a tripartite structure around considerations of textual social and large scale spatial and historical circumstances its thirty plus essays each deal with a theme of translation studies as emerged from the translation of one or more chinese literary works in doing so it offers new tools for reading and appreciating modern and contemporary chinese literature in the global context of its translation offering in depth studies about eminent chinese authors and their literary masterpieces in translation the first of its kind this book is essential reading for anyone studying or researching chinese literature in translation this book discusses the way chinese scholars developed a national grammar chinese didn t develop grammar until china s contact with western grammar books in the 19th century the first indigenous grammar was published in 1889 it included some traditional notions but mainly imitated european grammar it was followed by a number of other similar works to move away from this imitation a group of grammarians started to look into the chinese tradition of commenting on classics this led to a variety of alternative grammars after the war western linguistics started to gain influence in china with the establishment of the prc in 1949 efforts began to have a standard grammar adopted nationwide the first attempt at such a grammar was published in 1956 this book spans the period 1898 1956 this book combines historiography and linguistics to distinguish different periods in the timespan covered it shows how the development of a national grammar cannot be studied separately from language policies and discussions on the national language the description of each period includes a general introduction of the relevant events in that period and a treatment of the major works of grammar
