Laws, Mind, and Free Will 2011-03-11 an account of scientific laws that vindicates the status of psychological laws and shows natural laws to be compatible with free will in laws mind and free will steven horst addresses the apparent dissonance between the picture of the natural world that arises from the sciences and our understanding of ourselves as agents who think and act if the mind and the world are entirely governed by natural laws there seems to be no room left for free will to operate moreover although the laws of physical science are clear and verifiable the sciences of the mind seem to yield only rough generalizations rather than universal laws of nature horst argues that these two familiar problems in philosophy the apparent tension between free will and natural law and the absence of strict laws in the sciences of the mind are artifacts of a particular philosophical thesis about the nature of laws that laws make claims about how objects actually behave horst argues against this empiricist orthodoxy and proposes an alternative account of laws an account rooted in a cognitivist approach to philosophy of science horst argues that once we abandon the empiricist misunderstandings of the nature of laws there is no contrast between strict laws and generalizations about the mind ceteris paribus laws laws hedged by the caveat other things being equal and that a commitment to laws is compatible with a commitment to the existence of free will horst s alternative account which he calls cognitive pluralism vindicates the truth of psychological laws and resolves the tension between human freedom and the sciences atmosphere where negativity will flourish and the cure for this mind disease is to focus your thoughts to a positive purpose this is known as the law of attraction i e a person thinking negatively will find themselves attracting further negativity holmes uses the example of jesus creating an abundance of fish and bread simply by asking for them to illustrate how the law of attraction works the law of mind in action daily lessons and treatments in mental and spiritual science gives practical tips on things like overcoming fear the text weaves in references to the bible with new age ideas and the tips tone and ideas presented make the book an early self help book readers who are interested in the new thought movement science of mind or self help will be fascinated by reading about the origins of these concepts about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
