as jacob zuma moves into the twilight years of his presidencies of both the african national congress anc and of south africa this book takes stock of the zuma led administration and its impact on the anc dominance and decline the anc in the time of zuma combines hard hitting arguments with astute analysis susan booyesen shows how the anc has become centred on the personage of zuma and that its defence of his extremely flawed leadership undermines the party s capacity to govern competently and to protect its long term future following on from her first book the african national congress and the regeneration of power 2011 booyesen delves deeper into the four faces of power that characterise the anc her principal argument is that the state is failing as the president s interests increasingly supersede those of party and state organisationally the anc has become a hegemon riven by factions as the internal blocs battle for core positions of power and control meanwhile the zuma controlled anc has witnessed the implosion of the tripartite alliance and decimation of its youth women s and veterans leagues electorally the leading party has been ceding ground to increasingly assertive opposition parties and on the policy front it is faltering through poor implementation and a regurgitation of old ideas as zuma s replacements start competing and succession politics take shape booyesen considers whether the anc will recover from the damage wrought under zuma s reign and attain its former glory ultimately she believes that while the damage is irrevocable the electorate may still reward the anc for transcending the zuma years this is a must have reference book on the development of the modern anc with rigour and incisiveness booyesen offers scholars and researchers a coherent framework for considering future patterns in the anc and its hold on political power

The Action Plan for Australian Birds 2020 2021-12-01 the action plan for australian birds 2020 is the most comprehensive review of the status of australia s avifauna ever attempted the latest in a series of action plans for australian birds that have been produced every decade since 1992 it is also the largest the accounts in this plan have been authored by more than 300 of the most knowledgeable bird experts in the country and feature far more detail than any of the earlier plans this volume also includes accounts of over 60 taxa that are no longer considered threatened mainly thanks to sustained conservation action over many decades this extensive book covers key themes that have emerged in the last decade including the increasing impact of climate change as a threatening process most obviously in queensland s tropical rainforests where many birds are being pushed up the mountains however the effects are also indirect as happened in the catastrophic fires of 2019 20 many of the newly listed birds are subspecies confined to kangaroo island where fire destroyed over half the population but there are good news stories too especially on islands where there have been spectacular successes with predator control such uplifting results demonstrate that when action plans are followed by action on the ground threatened species can indeed be recovered and threats alleviated

Deposit Insurance Database 2014-07-03

this paper provides a comprehensive global database of deposit insurance arrangements as of 2013 we extend our earlier dataset by including recent adopters of deposit insurance and information on the use of government guarantees on banks assets and liabilities including during the recent global financial crisis we also create a safety net index capturing the generosity of the deposit insurance scheme and government guarantees on banks balance sheets the data show that deposit insurance has become more widespread and more extensive in coverage since the global financial crisis which also triggered a temporary increase in the government protection of non deposit liabilities and bank assets in most cases these guarantees have since been formally removed but coverage of deposit insurance remains above pre crisis levels raising concerns about implicit coverage and moral hazard going forward

Spatial Economics for Building Back Better 2021-10-17

the central theme of this book is national land and infrastructure design in the age of the declining population and the recovery from the great east japan earthquake in the affected regions in japan based on the theory of spatial economics and evidence from japanese history the authors show that the growing economy with a population increase develops into a multi cored and complex structure in the population decline phase however such construction will be destabilized because of agglomeration economies in the central core then a catastrophic shock that strikes may provoke the decline of the lower rank size provincial cities and their eventual disappearance if they compete only in lower prices of staple products not only is the practice bad for the residents it also leads to lower national welfare resulting from the loss of diversity and overcrowded big cities the authors argue that small local towns can recover and will be sustained if they will endeavor in innovative production by making good use of local natural resources and social capital under the ongoing declining population in japan an undesirable concentration in tokyo will proceed further with increasing social cost and risk the recent novel coronavirus pandemic has highlighted that concern italy is a country of recent decline and long standing idiosyncratic traits a rich society served by an advanced manufacturing economy where the rule of law is weak and political accountability low it has long been in downward spiral alimented by corruption and clientelism from this spiral has emerged an equilibrium as consistent as it is inefficient that raises serious obstacles to economic and democratic development the political economy of italy's decline explains the causes of italy's downward trajectory and explains how the country can shift to a fairer and more efficient system analysing both political economic literature and the history of italy from 1861 onwards the political economy of italy's decline argues that the deeper roots of the decline lie in the political economy of growth it places emphasis on the country's convergence to the productivity frontier and the evolution of its social order and institutions to illuminate the origins and evolution of the current constraints to growth using institutional economics and schumpeterian growth theory to support its findings it analyses two alternative reactions to the insufficient provision of public goods an opportunistic one employing tax evasion corruption or clientelism as means to appropriate private goods and one based on enforcing political accountability from the perspective of ordinary citizens and firms such social dilemmas can typically be modelled as coordination games which have multiple equilibria self interested rationality can thus lead to a spiral in which several mutually reinforcing vicious circles lead society onto an inefficient equilibrium characterized by low political accountability and weak rule of law the political economy of italy's decline follows the gradual setting in of this spiral as it identifies the deeper causes of italy's decline in late twentieth century england inequality was rocketing yet some have suggested that the politics of class was declining in significance while others argue that class identities lost little power neither interpretation is satisfactory class remained important to ordinary people s narratives about social change and their own identities throughout the period 1968 2000 but in changing ways using self narratives drawn from a wide range of sources the raw materials of sociological studies transcripts from oral history projects mass observation and autobiography the book examines class identities and narratives of social change between 1968 and 2000 showing that by the end of the period class was often seen as an historical identity related to background and heritage and that many felt strict class boundaries had blurred quite profoundly since 1945 class snobberies went underground as many people from all backgrounds began to assert that what was important was authenticity individuality and ordinariness in fact sutcliffe braithwaite argues that it is more useful to understand the cultural changes of these years through the lens of the decline of deference which transformed people s attitudes towards class and towards politics the study also examines the claim that thatcher and new labour wrote class out of politics arguing that this simple and highly political narrative misses important points thatcher was driven by political ideology and necessity to try to dismiss the importance of class while the new labour project was good at listening to voters particularly swing voters in marginal seats and echoing back what they were increasingly saying about the blurring of class lines and the importance of ordinariness but this did not add up to an abandonment of a majoritarian project as new labour reoriented their political project to emphasize using the state to empower the individual this book argues that despite the many real advantages that industrial modernity has yielded including large gains in wealth longevity and possibly happiness it has occurred together with the appearance of a variety of serious problems chief among these are probable losses in subjective existential purpose and increases in psychopathology a highly original theory of the ultimate basis of these trends is advanced which unites prior work in psychometrics and evolutionary science this theory builds on the social epistasis amplification model to argue that genetic and epigenetic changes in modernizing and modernized populations stemming from shifts in selective pressures related to industrialization have lowered human fitness and wellness communication is vital for social participation however communication often takes place under suboptimal conditions this makes communication harder and less reliable leading at worst to social isolation in order to promote participation it is necessary to understand the mechanisms underlying communication in different situations human communication is often speech based either oral or written but may also involve gesture either accompanying speech or in the form of sign language for communication to be achieved a signal generated by one person has to be perceived by another person attended to comprehended and responded to this process may be hindered by adverse conditions including factors that may be internal to the sender e.g. incomplete or idiosyncratic language production occur during transmission e.g. background noise or signal processing or be internal to the receiver e.g. poor grasp of the language or sensory impairment the extent to which these factors interact to generate adverse conditions may differ across the lifespan recent work has shown that successful speech communication under adverse conditions is associated with good cognitive capacity including efficient working memory and executive abilities such as updating and inhibition further frontoparietal networks associated with working memory and executive function have been shown to be activated to a greater degree when it is harder to achieve speech comprehension to date less work has focused on sign language communication under adverse conditions or the role of gestures accompanying speech communication under adverse conditions it has been proposed that the role of working memory in communication under such conditions is to keep fragments of an incomplete signal in mind updating them as appropriate and inhibiting irrelevant information until an adequate match can be achieved with lexical and semantic representations held in long term memory recent models of working memory highlight an episodic buffer whose role is the multimodal integration of information from the senses and long term memory it is likely that the episodic buffer plays a key role in communication under adverse conditions the aim of this research topic is to draw together multiple perspectives on communication under adverse conditions including empirical and theoretical approaches this will facilitate a scientific exchange among individual scientists and groups studying different aspects of communication under adverse conditions and or the role of cognition in communication as such this topic belongs firmly within the field of cognitive hearing science exchange of ideas among scientists with different perspectives on these issues will allow researchers to identify and highlight the way in which different internal and external factors interact to make communication in different modalities more or less successful across the lifespan such exchange is the forerunner of broader dissemination of results which ultimately may make it possible to take measures to reduce adverse conditions thus facilitating communication such measures might be implemented in relation to the built environment the design of hearing aids and public awareness emerging countries that have defaulted on their debt repayment obligations in the past are more likely to default again in the future than are non defaulters even with the same external debt to gdp ratio these countries actually have repeated defaults or restructurings in short periods this paper explains these stylized facts within a dynamic stochastic general equilibrium framework by explicitly modeling renegotiations between a defaulting country and its creditors the quantitative analysis of the model reveals that the equilibrium probability of default for a given debt to gdp level is weakly increasing with the number of past defaults the model also accords with an additional fact lower recovery rates high npv haircuts are associated with increases in spreads at renegotiation
