The Sources for the Early History of Ireland: Ecclesiastical 1957 this collection examines the topic of time in the life and works of augustine of hippo adopting a global perspective on time as a philosophical and theological problem the volume includes reflections on the meaning of history the mortality of human bodies and the relationship between temporal experience and linguistic expression as augustine himself once observed time is both familiar and surprisingly strange everyone s days are structured by temporal rhythms and routines from watching the clock to whiling away the hours at work few of us however take the time to sit down and figure out whether time is real or not or how it is we are able to hold our past present and future thoughts together in a straight line so that we can recite a prayer or sing a song divided into five sections the essays collected here highlight the ongoing relevance of augustine s work even in settings quite distinct from his own era and context the first three sections organized around the themes of interpretation language and gendered embodiment engage directly with augustine s own writings from the confessions to the city of god and beyond the final two sections meanwhile explore the afterlife of the augustinian approach in conversation with medieval islamic and christian thinkers like avicenna and aquinas as well as a broad range of buddhist figures like dharmakīrti and vasubandhu what binds all of these diverse chapters together is the underlying sense that regardless of the century or the tradition in which we find ourselves there is something about the puzzle of temporality that refuses to go away time as augustine knew demands our attention this was true for him in late ancient north africa it was also true for buddhist thinkers in south and east asia and it remains just as true for humankind in the twenty first century as people around the globe continue to grapple with the reality of time and the challenges of living in a world that always seems to be speeding up rather than slowing down

Theopompus The Historian 1991 half a century ago the primary contours of the history of the jews in roman times were not subject to much debate this standard account collapsed however when a handful of insights undermined the traditional historical method the method long enlisted by historians for eliciting facts from sources in response to these insights a new historical method gradually emerged rewriting ancient jewish history critiques the traditional historical method and makes a case for the new one illustrating how to write anew ancient jewish history at the heart of the traditional historical method lie three fundamental presumptions the traditional historical method regularly presumes that multiple versions of a text or tradition are equally authentic it presumes that many ancient jewish sources are the products of largely immanent forces of cloistered jewish communities and barring any local grounds for suspicion it presumes that most ancient jewish texts faithfully reflect their sources and reliably recount events rewriting ancient jewish history unfurls the failings of this approach it promotes the new historical method which circumvents the flawed traditional presumptions while plotting anew the limits of rational argumentation in historical inquiry this crucial reappraisal is a must read for students of jewish and roman history alike and a fascinating case study in how historians should approach their ancient sources

Report of the ... Meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science 1885 provincial governance under the roman republic has long been notorious for its corrupt officials and greedy tax farmers though this is far from being the whole story this book challenges the traditional picture contending that leading late republican citizens were more concerned about the problems of their empire than is generally recognized and took effective steps to address them attempts to improve provincial governance over the period 70-50 bc are examined in depth with a particular focus on the contributions of gnaeus pompeius magnus pompey and the younger marcus porcius cato these efforts ranged well beyond the sanctions of the extortion law encompassing show trials and model governors and drawing on principles of moral philosophy in 52 50 bc they culminated in a coordinated reform programme which combined far sighted administrative change with a concerted attempt to transform the ethos of provincial governance the union of what cicero called cato s policy of ethical governance with pompey s lex de provinciis a law which transformed the very nature of provincial command though more familiar as political opponents pompey and cato were united in their interest in good governance and were capable of working alongside each other to effect positive change this book demonstrates that it was their eventual collaboration in the late 50s bc that produced the republic s most significant programme of provincial reform in the process it offers a new perspective on these two key figures as well as an enriched understanding of provincial governance in the late roman republic
