account of cutting edge research within both psychology and political science this is an essential reference for scholars and students interested in the intersection of the two fields the book addresses how power and power resources remain important analytically as well as empirically dimensions for analysing contemporary capitalism it provides a theoretical framework for studying understanding and explaining changes in the world of work and how that leads to changes in contemporary capitalist societies changes in the world of work are closely related to increasing inequality growing social unrest and societal polarisation hence the book seeks to deepen our understanding of how developments in the sphere of work have implication far beyond the direct impact on workers the book focuses on how workers and unions utilise their various power resources to off set the power advantage of employers and capital in the sphere of labour politics which have crucial linkages with both cultural life politics and the market although workers and unions power and influence have been declining almost universally across the world the argument in the book is that they still hold power resources that can challenge and sometimes alter outcomes in another direction than what employers and capital wants hence the theory can help understand the possibilities that workers and unions still have and how these resources affect the outcomes of the labour capital struggle a core contribution of the book is that it develops theoretical propositions about power resource theory provides clear definitions of the core concepts as well as apply the power resource theory to a range of new or emerging topic fields like global value chains minimum wages and migrant workers the life work of a labor historian essays in honor of marcel van der linden eds ulbe bosma and karin hofmeester presents the latest developments in the history of labor and capitalism as part of global labor history jan lucassen magaly rodríguez garcía sidney chalhoub and willem van schendel discuss new concepts of work and workers including sex workers slaves in brazil and voluntary communal laborers in north east india while andreas eckert shows the relevance of area studies jürgen kocka presents a history of capitalism and its critics to date pepijn brandon analyzes marx s ideas on the link between free and coerced labor and jan breman looks at the effects of capitalism on rural solidarity through the lens of toccqueville the contributors to this volume explore the close relationship between education and the molding of modern immigrant societies through case studies of either asian migrants or asian immigrant societies this volume will be especially useful for researchers educators and students intent on understanding some of the critical challenges faced by a globalizing world this open access book explores the conceptual challenges posed by the presence of migrants with irregular immigration status in europe and the evolving policy responses at european national and municipal level it addresses the conceptual and policy issues raised post entry by this particular section of the migrant population drawing on evidence from different parts of europe the book takes the reader through philosophical and ethical dilemmas legal and sociological analysis to questions of public policy and governance before addressing the concrete ways in which those questions are posed in current policy agendas from the international to the local level as such this book is a valuable read to researchers practitioners and policy makers as well as to students working on irregular migration in europe in a comparative and or country based perspective the highly charged debate over morocco s diasporic minorities in europe has led to a growing interest in the literary production of these new europeans this comparative study is the first to discuss together a body of texts including contemporary judeo moroccan literature written in french spanish catalan and dutch which have never been studied as a group faced with such a variegated field of literary production the aim of this book is not to tie individual works of literature to their national place of origin but to re conceptualize the idea of a moroccan literature with regard to the transnational and multilingual experiences from which it arises drawing on a wide range of theoretical insights from fatima mernissi s concept of female subalternity to abdelmalek sayad s principle of the immigrants absent history this book allows for the re evaluation of the relationship between migration and postcolonial literary studies a careful analysis of the literary techniques used in the texts under scrutiny here highlights their poetic qualities without bypassing their political relevance with regard to the intercultural relations between morocco and europe as they are presently unfolding across the mediterranean and beyond this edited collection brings together texts that discuss current major issues in our troubled times through the lens of norbert elias s sociology it sheds light on both the contemporary world and some of elias s most controversial concepts through examination of the current affairs political and social contemporary changes the authors in this collection present new and challenging ways of understanding these social processes and figurations ultimately the objective of the book is to embrace and utilise some of the more polemical aspects of elias s legacy such as the exploration of decivilizing processes decivilizing spurts and dys civilization it investigates to what extent elias s sociological analyses are still applicable in our studies of the developments that mark our troubled times it does so through both global and local lenses theoretically and empirically and above all by connecting past present and possible futures of all human societies migrant women transforming citizenship develops essential insights concerning the notion of transnational citizenship by means of the life stories of skilled and educated migrant women from turkey in germany and britain it interweaves and develops theories of citizenship identity and culture with the lived experiences of an immigrant group that has so far received insufficient attention by focusing on the british and german contexts it introduces a much needed european and comparative perspective whilst exploring the ways in which diverging concepts and policies of citizenship allow for a differentiated examination of ethnicity gender multiculturalism and citizenship in europe presenting a significant and welcome contribution to our understanding of the complexities of multiculturalism it challenges orientalist images of women as backward and oppressed through engagement with the changing realities of education work intimacy family and social activism this volume provides a situated account of how the concepts of citizenship transnationality and culture play out in actual social relations with its rich empirical material the book explores how migrant women create new practices and meanings of belonging across boundaries critiquing dominant multiculturalist and anti multiculturalist accounts this book suggests how citizenship debates can be reframed to be inclusive of migrant women as actors as such it will appeal to those working across a range of social sciences including sociology and the sociology of work race and ethnicity citizenship cultural and gender studies as well as anthropology and social and public policy based on the oral histories of eighty migrant women and thirty additional interviews with native women in the receiving countries this volume documents the contemporary phenomenon of the feminisation of migration through an exploration of the lives of women who have moved from bulgaria and hungary to italy and the netherlands it assumes migrants to be active subjects creating possibilities and taking decisions in their own lives as well as being subject to legal and political regulation and the book analyses the new forms of subjectivity that come about through mobility part i is a largely conceptual exploration of subjectivity mobility and gender in europe the chapters in part ii focus on love work home communication and food themes which emerged from the migrant women s accounts in part iii based on the interviews with native women employers friends or in associations relevant to migrant women the chapters analyse their representations of migrants and the book goes on to explore forms of intersubjectivity between european women of different cultural origins a major contribution of this book is to consider how the movement of people across europe is changing the cultural and social landscape with implications for how we think about what europe means cover image painting by carla accardi reproduced with the kind permission of luca barsi of the galleria accademia via accademia albertina 3 e 10123 torino in new voices of muslim north african migrants in europe cristián h ricci captures the experience in writing of a growing number of individuals belonging to migrant communities in europe the book follows attempts to transform postcolonial literary studies into a comparative translangual and supranational project based on the oral histories of eighty migrant women and thirty additional interviews with native women in the receiving countries this volume documents the contemporary phenomenon of the feminisation of migration through an exploration of the lives of women who have moved from bulgaria and hungary to italy and the netherlands it assumes migrants to be active subjects creating possibilities and taking decisions in their own lives as well as being subject to legal and political regulation and the book analyses the new forms of subjectivity that come about through mobility part i is a largely conceptual exploration of subjectivity mobility and gender in europe the chapters in part ii focus on love work home communication and food themes which emerged from the migrant women's accounts in part iii based on the interviews with native women employers friends or in associations relevant to migrant women the chapters analyse their representations of migrants and the book goes on to explore forms of intersubjectivity between european women of different cultural origins a major contribution of this book is to consider how the movement of people across europe is changing the cultural and social landscape with implications for how we think about what europe means cover image painting by carla accardi reproduced with the kind permission of luca barsi of the galleria accademia via accademia albertina 3 e 10123 torino
