in tongues of fire nancy farriss investigates the role of language and translation in the creation of mexican christianity during the first centuries of colonial rule spanish missionaries collaborated with indigenous intellectuals to communicate the gospel in dozens of unfamiliar local languages that had previously lacked grammars dictionaries or alphabetic script the major challenge to translators more serious than the absence of written aids or the great diversity of languages and their phonetic and syntactical complexity was the vast cultural difference between the two worlds the lexical gaps that frustrated the search for equivalence in conveying fundamental christian doctrines derived from cultural gaps that separated european experiences and concepts from those of the indians farriss shows that the dialogue arising from these efforts produced a new culturally hybrid form of christianity that had become firmly established by the end of the 17th century the study focuses on the otomangue languages of oaxaca in southern mexico especially zapotec and relates their role within the dominican program of evangelization to the larger context of cultural contact in post conquest mesoamerica fine grained analysis of translated texts reveals the rhetorical strategies of missionary discourse spotlighting the importance of the native elites in shaping what emerged as a new form of christianity farriss shows how their participation as translators and parish administrators helped to make evangelization an indigenous enterprise and the new mexican church an indigenous one the second coming of christ the resurrection of the dead the final judgment the apocalypse is central to christianity and has evolved throughout christianity s long history thus when ecclesiastics brought the apocalypse to indigenous audiences in the americas both groups adapted it further reflecting new political and social circumstances the religious texts in aztec and maya apocalypses many translated for the first time provide an intriguing picture of this process revealing the influence of european aztec and maya worldviews on portrayals of doomsday by spanish priests and indigenous authors alike the apocalypse and christian eschatology played an important role in the conversion of the indigenous population and often appeared in the texts and sermons composed for their consumption through these writings from the sixteenth to the early nineteenth century priests official texts and indigenous authors rendering of them mark z christensen traces maya and nahua influences both stylistic and substantive while documenting how extensively old world content and meaning were absorbed into indigenous texts visions of world endings and beginnings were not new to the indigenous cultures of america christensen shows how and why certain formulations such as the fifteen signs of doomsday found receptive audiences among the maya and the aztec with religious ramifications extending to the present day these translated texts provide the opportunity to see firsthand the negotiations that ecclesiastics and indigenous people engaged in when composing their eschatological treatises with their insights into how various ecclesiastics nahuas and mayas preached and even understood catholicism they offer a uniquely detailed deeply informed perspective on the process of forming colonial religion since its publication nearly eight decades ago the consensus among scholars about fábulas de equis y zeda by the spanish poet gerardo diego 1896 1987 remains unchanged fábulas is an enigmatic avant garde curiosity it seems to rob the reader of the reason necessary to interpret it even as it lures him or her ineluctably to the task nevertheless the present study makes the case that this work is in fact not inaccessible and that what the anhelante arquitecto intended with his masterpiece was a creation myth that explains the evolution of music in his day this monograph unlocks the fullness of the poem s meaning sourced in music s mythical consciousness and expressed in a poetic idiom that replicates aesthetic concepts and cubist strategies of form embraced by the neoclassical composers bartok falla ravel and stravinsky in won in translation roger chartier one of the world s leading historians of books publishing and reading considers the mobility of the early modern text and the plurality of circulating versions of the same work the agent for both is translation for through their lexical aesthetic and cultural decisions translators always assign new meaning or new status to what they translate won in translation proceeds by way of four case studies three dedicated to works originally in spanish the fourth to a portuguese dramatic adaptation of don quixote bartolomé de las casas brevísima relación de la destrucción de las indias first printed in 1552 was a powerful instrument for the construction of what was later called the black legend of spanish monarchy baltasar gracián s oráculo manual published in 1647 became the most famous courtier s manual in europe both traveled more widely and were translated more often than any other books of their era for chartier they illustrate the great power of translation which allowed las casas account to be placed in multiple and successive contexts and enabled gracián s book to take on a range of meanings it had not originally had chartier s next two chapters are devoted to plays one by lope de vega the other by antônio josé da silva in the case of lope s fuenteovejuna the translation was one from historical chronicle to dramatic performance in antônio josé da silva s vida do grande d quixote the textual migration is twofold as cervantes hero moves from spanish to portuguese and from novel to play in an epilogue chartier moves three centuries forward to consider the paradox that it is the absolute immobility of the text reinvented word for word that creates its mobility in jorge luis borges fiction pierre menard author of the quixote works are transformed through changes of genre or language to be sure but even when the texts remain fixed their readers give them different or inverted meaning digicat publishing presents to you this special edition of fortunes and dreams espiritual es evangélica jesús se retiró al desierto durante cuarenta días antes de iniciar su vida pública y lo mismo hizo san pablo después de su conversión ya césar cicerón y plinio hablaban de la conveniencia del recessus la acción de retirarse a un lugar solitario pues no estoy menos solo que cuando estoy solo decía cicerón san ambrosio añadirá un sentido radicalmente cristiano al recordarnos que cuando estamos en gracia nunca estamos solos cuando se acallan las voces del mundo y se recoge uno en sí mismo entonces en esa soledad se siente y se goza la cercanía de dios estas meditaciones son fruto de una larga experiencia del autor como predicador siguen un temario clásico y tratan de ayudar al alma a ponerse en presencia de jesús escucharlo y considerar luego la propia vida qué
