which the patient's primary clinician (pc) is assisted in the management of specific health conditions by a care manager (cm) who is typically supervised by a physician with special expertise in the management of those conditions. The care manager (cm) was initially developed in the 1980s to detect and manage patient risks. The health and well-being of patients depends on a collaborative effort between patient and physician in a mutually respectful alliance. Patients contribute to this alliance when they fulfill responsibilities they have to seek care and to be candid with their physicians. Physicians can best contribute to a
