 publisher ithaca n y cornell university press the title of the book constructing identities in late antiquity makes it clear that the contributions are not dealing with historical facts and realities but are looking for the motives and perceptions of defining and constructing identities through image and text in a changing society the essays in constructing identities in late antiquity concern themselves with the theme of identity an increasingly popular topic in classical studies through detailed discussions of particular roman texts and images the contributors show not only how these texts were used to create and organise particular visions of late antique society the essays in constructing identities in late antiquity concern themselves with the theme of identity an increasingly popular topic in classical studies identity normally becomes a central issue of concern during adolescence when decisions about future vocational ideological and relational issues need to be addressed however these key identity concerns often demand further reflection and revision during different phases of adult life as well more recently however a growing body of scholarship is revealing the degree to which identities in the late roman world were fluid blurred by ethnic social and gender differences christianness for example was only one of a plurality of identities available
