environmental politics sustainability studies and development studies as well as for environmental activists policy practitioners and environmental educators more broadly this book will appeal to anyone interested in and concerned with issues of sustainability social justice and citizenship in the twenty first century this book explores how citizenship is differently gendered and performed across national and regional boundaries using citizenship as its organizing concept it is a collection of multidisciplinary approaches to legal socio cultural and performative aspects of gender construction and identity violence against women victimhood and agency and everyday issues of socialization in a globalized world it brings together scholars of politics media and performance who are committed to dialogue across both nation and discipline this study is the culmination of a two year project on the topic of gendered citizenship arising from an international collaboration that has sought to develop a comparative and yet singular perspective on performance in relation to key political themes facing our countries of origin in the early decades of this century the research is interdisciplinary and multinational drawing on indian european and north and south american contexts there is a flourishing literature on citizenship education in china that is mostly unknown in the west liberal political theorists often assume that only in democracy should citizens be prepared for their future responsibilities yet citizenship education in china has undergone a number of transformations as the political system has sought to cope with market reforms globalization and pressures both externally and within the country for broader political reforms over the past decade chinese scholars have been struggling for official recognition of citizenship education as a key component of the school curriculum in these changing contexts this book analyzes the citizenship education issues under discussion within china and aims to provide a voice for its scholars at a time when china s international role is becoming increasingly important as a radically new world emerges from one of the deepest global crises in living memory individuals teams organizations and even entire countries will feel the urge to reinvent themselves in order to fit in they will need to apply their imagination their capacity to dream and to pursue those dreams with determination in this citizenship textbook for key stage 4 each lesson is in a spread containing a single key concept summed up in the heading bite sized chunks of information key words and activities contrary to predictions that it would become increasingly redundant in a globalizing world citizenship is back with a vengeance the oxford handbook of citizenship brings together leading experts in law philosophy political science economics sociology and geography to provide a multidisciplinary comparative discussion of different dimensions of citizenship as legal status and political membership as rights and obligations as identity and belonging as civic virtues and practices of engagement and as a discourse of political and social equality or responsibility for a common good the contributors engage with some of the oldest normative and substantive quandaries in the literature dilemmas that have renewed salience in today s political climate as well as setting an agenda for future theoretical and empirical explorations this handbook explores the state of citizenship today in an accessible and engaging manner that will appeal to a wide academic and non academic audience chapters highlight variations in citizenship regimes practiced in different countries from immigrant states to non western contexts from settler societies to newly independent states attentive to both migrants and those who never cross an international border topics include the selling of citizenship multilevel citizenship in between statuses citizenship laws post colonial citizenship the impact of technological change on citizenship and other cutting edge issues this handbook is the major reference work for those engaged with citizenship from a legal political and cultural perspective written by the most knowledgeable senior and emerging scholars in their fields this comprehensive volume offers state of the art analyses of the main challenges and prospects of citizenship in today s world of increased migration and globalization special emphasis is put on the question of whether inclusive and egalitarian citizenship can provide political legitimacy in a turbulent world of exploding social inequality and resurgent populism this work has been selected by scholars as being culturally important and is anthropology history urban planning geography and political studies it looks beyond citizenship as a formal legal status to explore how ideas about citizenship have shaped political and historical landscapes in different ways through the region it shows how conceptions of citizenship are intertwined with understandings of natural spaces and environments how indigenous politics are de colonizing western liberal conceptions of citizenship and how citizenship is being transformed through local level politics and projects for development in addition to showcasing some of the novel emerging forms of citizenship in the region the book also traces the ways in which historical narratives of citizenship and national belonging persist within present day politics collectively the chapters show that citizenship remains an important entry point for understanding politics projects of reform and struggles for transformation in latin america this book was published as a special issue of citizenship studies as governments around the world grapple with the challenge of delivering environmental sustainability attention has recently focused on the role that citizens should play in meeting the challenge in advanced industrial countries such as ours which operate in the political framework of liberal capitalism what relevance can we place on environmental citizenship this book looks at the obstacles and opportunities which exist within this context and examines the possibility of ethical investment the social economy and considers whether there is space in the capitalist economy for environmental citizens to do the right thing this book is a special issue of the leading journal environmental politics feminist analysis shows that the prevailing concepts of citizenship often assume a male citizen how then does this affect the agency and participation of women in modern democracies this insightful book first published in 2000 presents a systematic comparison of the links between women s social rights and democratic citizenship in three different citizenship models republican citizenship in france liberal citizenship in britain and social citizenship in denmark birte siim argues that france still suffers from the contradictions of pro natalist policy and that britain is only just starting to re conceptualise the male breadwinner model that is still a dominant feature in her examination of the dual breadwinner model in denmark siim presents research about scandinavian social policy and makes an important and timely contribution to debates in political sociology social policy and gender studies feinman institute for human communication california state u labeling herself an antimilitarist feminist attempts to account for and reconcile the structures that lead some feminists to insist on full inclusion and participation in the armed forces analyzing and approving the wish for inclusion as a will towards full citizenship she nevertheless argues that the military and war itself are essentially expressions of patriarchy and calls for a dialogue between feminist militarists and feminist antimilitarist without this dialogue she fears the field is left open to antifeminist militarists annotation copyrighted by book news inc portland or much of the world today views america as an imperialist nation bent on global military economic and cultural domination at home few share this negative view bob pepperman taylor however argues that us moral self righteousness may potentially imperil democratic ideals and threaten democracy this book investigates how chinese international students reconfigure their sense of themselves as citizens when they reflect on what chinese citizenship means in the context of new zealand adopting a case study approach it develops a theory relating to the thoughts of chinese international students the theory is based on the communities schools family and state relationships of both their past and their contemporary daily experiences it finds that the struggles of chinese young people lie in between being individuals and submitting to the general will of the family state and guanxi a chinese concept of interpersonal relationships the book argues that the western literature on citizenship is not sufficient in helping us understand how it is viewed in the chinese contexts it offers readers a picture of what citizenship means for chinese young people and the role of citizenship education in modern chinese society and demonstrates that the chinese young people studied re educated themselves on citizenship in a way that is unstable and emotional this book makes important contributions to the literature on chinese students who are studying abroad by going beyond the well researched topics of academic and social experience to explore deeper understandings of each individual student s relationship to family and the state in china and how the study abroad experience has developed new understandings of individual s relationships to china and new possibilities for contributing to chinese society on return this open access book is about the development of a common understanding of environmental citizenship it conceptualizes and frames environmental citizenship taking an educational perspective organized in four complementary parts the book first explains the political economic and societal dimensions of the concept next it examines environmental citizenship as a psychological concept with a specific focus on knowledge values beliefs and attitudes it then explores environmental citizenship within the context of environmental education and education for sustainability it elaborates responsible environmental behaviour youth activism and education for sustainability through the lens of environmental citizenship finally it discusses the concept within the context of different educational levels such as primary and secondary education in formal and non formal settings environmental citizenship is a key factor in sustainability green and cycle economy and low carbon society and an important aspect in addressing global environmental problems it has been an influential concept in many different arenas such as economy policy philosophy and organizational marketing in the field of education the concept could be better exploited and established however education and especially environmental discourses in science education have a great deal to contribute to the adoption and promotion of environmental citizenship in light of the recommendations of the crick report on citizenship education education for citizenship and the teaching of democracy which can be downloaded at qca.org.uk/downloads/6123_crick_report_1998.pdf published in september 1998 the subject was introduced into the school curriculum in 2002 on a compulsory basis for secondary schools and as part of the non statutory framework for primary schools the committee s report assesses the progress made during the last four years to deliver quality citizenship programmes and examines the barriers that exist to its successful implementation it finds that when well done citizenship education motivates and inspires young people but the quality and extent of these programmes are still inconsistent across the country this patchiness needs to be tackled head on and progress accelerated requiring strong support from the dfes and ministers as well as action from those on the ground the committee welcomes the government s decision to accept the recommendations of the report by sir keith ajegbo which highlighted the need for citizenship curriculum to have a closer focus on issues of identity diversity and belonging more can be done to disseminate between settings good practice information about approaches that are working in other institutions particularly in relation to whole school or college approaches that develop opportunities for active citizenship although it is essential that programmes are locally owned and relevant to the particular context the development of the workforce is also important to the success of citizenship education and although the expansion of the continuing professional development cpd citizenship certificate programme is welcome more resources are needed to develop capacity in initial teacher training places for citizenship education citizenship policies are changing rapidly in the face of global migration trends and the inevitable ethnic and racial diversity that follows the debates are fierce what should the requirements of citizenship be how can multi ethnic states forge a collective identity around a common set of values beliefs and practices what are appropriate criteria for admission and rights and duties of citizens this book includes nine case studies that investigate immigration and citizenship in australia the baltic states canada the european union israel mexico russia south africa and the united states this complete collection of essays scrutinizes the concrete rules and policies by which states administer citizenship and highlights similarities and differences in their policies from migrants to citizens the only comprehensive guide to citizenship policies in these liberal democratic and emerging states will be an invaluable reference for scholars in law political science and citizenship theory policymakers and government officials involved in managing citizenship policy in the united states and abroad will find this an excellent accessible overview of the critical dilemmas that multi ethnic societies face as a result of migration and global interdependencies at the end of the twentieth century teacher and student material intended to support the teaching of pshe and citizenship at key stage 1 this handbook is a much needed international reference work written by leading writers in the field of global citizenship and education it is based on the most recent research and practice from across the world with the geographically based overviews section providing summaries of global citizenship and education provided for southern africa australasia europe the middle east north america latin america and east and south east asia the handbook discusses in the key ideologies section the philosophies that influence the meaning of global citizenship and education including neo liberalism and global capitalism nationalism and internationalism and issues of post colonialism indigeneity and transnationalism next the key concepts section explores the ideas that underpin debates about global citizenship and education with particular attention paid to issues of justice equity diversity identity and sustainable development with these key concepts in place the principal perspectives and contexts section turns to exploring global citizenship and education from a wide variety of viewpoints including economic political cultural moral environmental spiritual and religious as well as taking into consideration issues of ethnicity gender and sexuality and social class finally the key issues in the teaching of global citizenship section discusses how education can be provided through school subjects and study abroad programmes as well as through other means including social media and online assessment and political activism this handbook will be vital reading for academics postgraduates and advanced undergraduates in the fields of sociology and education particularly those with an interest in comparative studies
