Song Social Change in Latin America offers seven essays from a diverse group of scholars on the topic of music as a reflection of the many social political upheavals throughout Latin America from the 20th century to the present. Topics covered include the Tropicália movement in Brazil, the Nueva Canción in Central America, rock in Mexico, Argentina, Chile, and Peru, the Vallenato in Colombia, Trova in Cuba, and urban music of Puerto Rico in the mid-20th century. The collection also includes five interviews from prominent and up-and-coming musicians: Rubén Blades, Roy Brown, Habana Abierta, Ana Tijoux, and Mare, representing a variety of musical genres and political issues in Central America, the Caribbean, South America, and Mexico.

This collection is the first to examine the effects of bilingualism and multilingualism on the development of dialectal varieties of Spanish in Africa, America, Asia, and Europe. Nineteen essays investigate a variety of complex situations of contact between Spanish and typologically different languages, including Basque, Bantu languages, English, and Quechua. The overall picture that evolves clearly indicates that although influence from the contact languages may lead to different dialects, the core grammar of Spanish remains intact. Silva Corvalán's volume makes an important contribution both to sociolinguistics in general and to Spanish linguistics in particular. The contributors address theoretical and empirical issues that advance our knowledge of what is a possible linguistic change, how languages change, and how changes spread in society in situations of intensive bilingualism and language contact, a situation that appears to be the norm rather than the exception in the world.
