How to Fail in Literature: A Lecture

what should be a man's or a woman's reason for taking literature as a vocation what sort of success ought they to desire what sort of ambition should possess them these are natural questions now that so many readers exist in the world all asking for something new now that so many writers are making their pens òin running to devour the wayÓ over so many acres of foolscap the legitimate reasons for enlisting too often without receiving the shilling in this army of writers are not far to seek a man may be convinced that he has useful or beautiful or entertaining ideas within him he may hold that he can express them in fresh and charming language he may in short have a òvocation Ó or feel conscious of a vocation which is not exactly the same thing there are òmany thyrsus bearers few mystics Ó many are called few chosen still to be sensible of a vocation is something nay is much for most of us drift without any particular aim or predominant purpose nobody can justly censure people whose chief interest is in letters whose chief pleasure is in study or composition who rejoice in a fine sentence as others do in a well modelled limb or a delicately touched landscape nobody can censure them for trying their fortunes in literature most of them will fail for as the bookselleròs young man told an author once they have the poetic temperament without the poetic power still among these whom pendennis has tempted in boyhood to run away from school to literature as marryat has tempted others to run away to sea there must be some who will succeed but an early and intense ambition is not everything any more than a capacity for taking pains is everything in literature or in any art some have the gift the natural incommunicable power without the ambition others have the ambition but no other gift from any muse this class is the more numerous but the smallest class of all has both the power and the will to excel in letters the desire to write the love of letters may shew itself in childhood in boyhood or youth and mean nothing at all a mere harvest of barren blossom without fragrance or fruit or again the concern about letters may come suddenly when a youth that cared for none of those things is waning it may come when a man suddenly finds that he has something which he really must tell then he probably fumbles about for a style and his first fresh impulses are more or less marred by his inexperience of an art which beguiles and fascinates others even in their school days excerpt from studies in american literature a text book for academies and high schools verse is so generally employed in poetry that the terms are often confused they should be carefully distinguished for much good verse like dr holmes famous one hoss shay has scarcely any elements of poetry and there is prose like ik marvel s dream life which is essentially poetic it is not easy to define poetry it is the kind of writing in which the imagination predominates it employs metaphor simile personification and other tropes more freely than does prose poetry does not argue it reports the visions of the seer it is essentially creative the poet appeals to the emotions rather than to the understanding these statements characterize rather than define and some of them might be reasonably disputed but they may serve to help us make the necessary distinction between prose and poetry the principal forms of prose and verse had been developed in english literature before american literature began to be american writers imparted qualities of their own to these already established forms but they have not except in a few instances attempted to change them or to depart from them about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are a history of american literature in its beginnings american literature differs from the literatures of most other great nations it was a transplanted thing it sprang in a way like minerva full armed from the head of jove jove in this case being england and the armor being the heritage which the average american colonist had secured in england before he crossed the atlantic in contrast greek roman french german english and the other less familiar literatures can all be more or less successfully traced back to primitive conditions their early life was interwoven with the growth of the language and the progress of a rude civilization and their earliest products which have come down to us were not results of authorship as we know it to day they were either folk poetry composed perhaps and certainly enjoyed by the people in groups and accompanied by group singing and dancing like the psalms and the simpler ballads or they were the record of folk tradition slowly and variously developed through generations and finally collected into a continuous story like the iliad the Æneid the song of roland the nibelungenlied and beowulf they were composed by word of mouth and not reduced to writing for years or generations and they were not put into print until centuries after they were current in speech or transcribed by monks and scholars evaluation is central to literary studies and has led to an impressive list of publications on the status and history of the canon yet it is remarkable how little attention has been given to the role of textual properties in evaluative processes most of the chapters in the quality of literature redress this issue by dealing with texts or genres ranging from classical antiquity via renaissance to twentieth century they provide a rich textual and historical panorama of how critical debate over literary quality has influenced our modes of thinking and feeling about literature and how they continue to shape the current literary landscape four theoretical chapters reflect on the general state of literary evaluation while the introduction weaves the different threads together aiming at further conceptual clarification this book thus contributes to a deeper understanding of the problems that are at the heart of past and present debates over literary quality volume concentrates on the american literature of 19th and 20th centuries and includes critical papers on authors widely prescribed in the indian universities as we are aware the beauty of any literary work is that it leads to fresh interpretation every time when viewed from a different angle the scholarly and critical analysis presented on the works of several american literary masters such as emerson hawthorn poe whitman hemingway o neill miller morrison walker etc by experts in the field of english literature would unquestionably enable the readers gain a new insight into the interpretation of literary works while serving as an additional resource to the teachers of american literature this volume is expected to assist the students and researchers in the domain of american literature

The Norton Introduction to Literature

2015-10-08

in 20th century literature a kind of fiction has come much to the fore where the narrator discusses his own craft and frequently addresses the reader however laurence sterne's tristram shandy may serve as a striking example of the fact that metafiction is no modern phenomenon metafiction has been criticized for solipsism and regarded as a final proof of 'the novel no longer novel' discussing works of three contemporary novelists nobokov barth and beckett and sterne's eighteenth century novel the author argues that with their tricks parodies and humour humor the metafictionists are concerned with a central human problem communication should literature entertain come up with ideas about the meaning of existence or give the reader a purely aesthetic experience the four novelists examined in this study give different and rather exciting answers to these questions and to the problem of bringing their intentions across to the reader book cover
