today's laws are very different from the laws of moses so for christians there is a constant need to unpeel the layers of history that have added and subtracted and even distorted god's laws for while christians may be saved by faith not works god's laws should not be totally forgotten the aim of these studies then is to show how meaningful and relevant the laws of moses are to believers in the twenty first century the sixteen studies provide a snapshot of the kind of god that christians believe in and the kind of behaviour that he expects from his people they are divided thematically into four blocks of four to assist those who would prefer to tackle the subject in smaller bites about the author brian a curtis was born in kent england and at the age of twenty left home migrated to australia and lived and worked in melbourne launceston and hobart in 1980 he began his studies at ridley theological college melbourne and on completion was ordained by the anglican church of australia diocese of tasmania in 1990 he took a ten year break from the ordained ministry and gained work helping welfare recipients and the long term unemployed he then returned to the stipendiary ministry but retired in 2009 to concentrate on his writing brian has a deep interest in biblical culture and teaching indeed he has a passion that others should share a good understanding of the hebrew and christian scriptures he sees this as particularly relevant in a world where they are so often misunderstood and misrepresented
