methods in the study of religion and dance by critiquing and displacing a conceptual dichotomy between religion and dance forged in the colonial era that justified western christian hostility towards dance traditions across six continents over six centuries this book has two purposes first to introduce the study of work and the workplace as a method for informing the design of computer systems to be used at work we primarily focus on the predominant way in which the organization of work has been approached within the field of human computer interaction hci which is from the perspective of ethnomethodology we locate studies of work in hci within its intellectual antecedents and describe paradigmatic examples and case studies second we hope to provide those who are intending to conduct the type of fieldwork that studies of work and the workplace draw off with suggestions as to how they can go about their own work of developing observations about the settings they encounter these suggestions take the form of a set of maxims that we have found useful while conducting the studies we have been involved in we draw from our own fieldwork notes in order to illustrate these maxims in addition we also offer some homilies about how to make observations again these are ones we have found useful in our own work table of contents motivation overview a paradigmatic case scientific foundations detailed description case study how to conduct ethnomethodological studies of work making observations current status
