what are we going to do now mommy how often do you get that question at your home the daily madness of our days often makes it hard for us to decide what to do purposefully when we are asked the question what are we going to do now mommy or daddy or granny in addition without planning and reflection many important moments in the lives of the children go unnoticed and with that some activity that could bring an important learning ends up not achieving this goal our solution the kids activities journal this journal was designed based on children 4 to 8 years old and with the goal to support families in developing a healthier more organized and efficient routine of activities while raising their children it will help you plan for playful activities games and hobbies with children in addition to encouraging them to do school work and help with chores it contains the following sessions activities for today pages a list of suggested activities that parents or children can read and check the boxes as the day goes by and they complete the to dos this week best activities a space for your kid to add his her own favorite activities each day of the week drawing space the kids can use their creativity to draw something that symbolizes the best activity experienced during the week or they can express their feelings while doing these activities eg happy excited materials list for next week s activities in this space the grown ups can plan a little bit in advance of the upcoming week what materials will you need what can you recycle what can you borrow do you need to order something online additional notes pages a space to record the ideas that you or your kid believe will be important ones to remember eg activities to repeat improve or simply notes about an experience that you'd like to record as a memory how to use this journal every day or whenever as possible open the journal as a menu of activities for your child check the boxes as you complete the activities you chose for the day at the end of each day you're encouraged to ask your kid what was his/her favorite activity and at the end of each week he/she can also make a drawing to represent one of the favorite things you did finally use the additional note page at the end of each week as needed this journal is a perfect gift to kids attending school virtually and spending a lot of time at home or for their vacation period it is an awesome gift for a mom friend who may be overwhelmed and need some support ideas we hope that this journal will help your family get more organized and ensure that your children are kept busy in a purposeful and well planned way with this journal they will learn develop good habits as they have fun and hopefully you will get a break too let's get started ps if you want to check other options of educational and mental health journals just click on a day to remember above ie our author name on amazon to check our selection you will have access to our full collection of journals and even to our contact information we release new journals weekly so we invite you to come back often

Caring and Sharing

caring and sharing is a very simple phrase to which young children readily respond if this approach to interacting and living with others is introduced in a positive and enjoyable way and followed from an early enough age it can enhance a child's learning potential and personal skills and build a firm foundation for later life the practical activities encourage active learning and family involvement so that the adults at home and those in the early years settings may work together consistently to support the children's developing skills and values they include ideas for encouraging children to enjoy using the words please and thank you to take turns to share and to listen and speak to each other courteously so that children may learn to appreciate kindness in others and to show care and respect for members of their own families friends and others in the community all of the play activities are designed to develop important preschool skills and positive relationships and are linked to the early learning goals of the statutory framework for the early years foundation stage revised by the department of education for september 2012

nancy folbre challenges the conventional economist s assumption that parents have children for the same reason that they acquire pets primarily for the pleasure of their company children become the workers and taxpayers of the next generation and investments in them offer a significant payback to other participants in the economy yet parents especially mothers pay most of the costs the high price of childrearing pushes many families into poverty often with adverse consequences for children themselves parents spend time as well as money on children yet most estimates of the cost of children ignore the value of this time folbre provides a startlingly high but entirely credible estimate of the value of parental time per child by asking what it would cost to purchase a comparable substitute for it she also emphasizes the need for better accounting of public expenditure on children over the life cycle and describes the need to rethink the very structure and logic of the welfare state a new institutional structure could promote more cooperative sustainable and efficient commitments to the next generation published in 1999 housework and child care are a major part of most peoples lives the growth of part time work amongst women is just one example of the way our economy is structured to accommodate this fact yet very little research has been done on this subject in britain and what little has been done tends to be small scale and impressionistic this book examines how couples divide their time between domestic and paid work and the effect that tensions between the two can have it provides valuable evidence on how domestic work is organized and why when women are more likely to be employed than not men have not increased their share of domestic work representative evidence is combined with previous small scale research to show how private troubles are related to massive social and economic changes in british society evidence of this sort has never been presented before in the british context
