more important than what i might make of myself these changing dynamics of selfhood the transition from self to selfie reveal not only the peculiar ways in which selfhood is problematized in contemporary society but equally the tragic fragility of the selfie in the absence of any social authority that could give it some security reflects the work of the critical theory institute at the u of california irvine which from the fall of 1988 to the spring of 1991 considered the topic critical theory contemporary culture and the question of the political this volume consists largely of essays by members of the group and invited guests that were presented discussed and revised during that period paper edition 08057 3 17 50 annotation copyright by book news inc portland or as a work of cultural criticism that recalls the concerns of foucault hayden white zizek and others decentering music examines the struggle for the authority to speak about music at a time when the humanities are in crisis by linking the institutions that support musical research including professional associations and universities to complex historical changes such as globalization and the commodification of knowledge korsyn undertakes a critique of musical scholarship as an institutional discourse while contributing to a general theory of disciplinary structures that goes beyond the limits of any single field in asking a number of fundamental questions about the models through which disciplinary objects in music are constructed korsyn suggests unexpected relationships between works of musical scholarship and the cultural networks in which they participate thus david lewin s theory of musical perceptions is compared to richard rorty s concept of the liberal ironist susan mcclary s feminist narrative of music history is juxtaposed with t s eliot s dissociation of sensibility and steven feld s work in recording the music of the kaluli people is compared to the treatment of ambient sound in contemporary cinema developing a framework for interpretation in dialogue with a number of poststructuralist writers korsyn goes far beyond applying their thought to the analysis of music by showing the cultural dilemmas to which their work responds korsyn suggests how musical research already participates in these ideas rather than impose any single method decentering music empowers readers to choose for themselves by interrogating their own values and ideological commitments exploring the enabling conditions for statements about music by demonstrating the complicity of opposing positions and challenging readers to reexamine their own values decentering music will surely provoke debate while appealing to readers in a variety of fields and to anyone concerned about the crisis in the humanities does philosophical critique have a future what are its possibilities limits and presuppositions this collection by outstanding scholars from various traditions responds to these questions by examining the forms of philosophical critique that have shaped continental thought from spinoza and kant to marx foucault derrida and rancière this book focuses upon the socially interventionist and activist agendas of contemporary art biennials during and in response to the current economic crisis since the late nineteenth century museums have been cited as tools of imperialism and colonialism as strongholds of patriarchy masculinism homophobia and xenophobia and accused both of elitism and commercialism but could the museum absorb and benefit from its critique turning into a critical museum into the site of resistance rather than ritual this book looks at the ways in which the museum could use its collections its cultural authority its auratic space and resources to give voice to the underprivileged and to take an active part in contemporary and at times controversial issues drawing together both major museum professionals and academics it examines the theoretical concept of the critical museum and uses case studies of engaged art institutions from different parts of the world it reaches beyond the usual focus on western europe america and the world including voices from as well as about eastern european museums which have rarely been discussed in museum studies books so far the book is a critique of the capitalist world including both the injustices it inflicts and the acts of resistance it provokes which end up reproducing it it is also a critique of the ideas about this world especially some of the ideas which are considered to be progressive the book talks about why so called critical thought as it exists is inadequate why genuine critique is possible and necessary what its different forms and attributes are and who it is aimed toward the masses or academia this book presents what it considers to be the most adequate form of critique the marxist critique this is a critique which explains humanity's problems mainly in terms of the conflict-ridden social relations that determine how society's resources are used and this is a critique which seeks to transcend the current arrangements to establish popular democracy in all spheres of life including economic, political and cultural. The book then employs the principles of the marxist critique to shed light on specific issues in the world as they exist and on the so-called progressive ideas about these issues. The issues include poverty and inequality in india, industrial disasters in the us, labour unfreedom in the capitalist north and south, the relation between economic and political power in modern society, social democracy, development of capitalism in rural areas and imperialism, pharmaceutical fraud and the consequent threat to human health in the us, and the maoist movement and protest politics of the anarchist type against dispossession and other forms of injustice. Anyone with an interest in a theoretical understanding of the notion of critique in the nature of the marxist critique and in some of the fundamental issues facing the humanity will benefit from this book. Sociologists, political scientists, human geographers, anthropologists and experts in development studies will find some value in this book. Critical scholars in general who have an interest in understanding power relations in economic and political arenas will be the main audience. People involved in NGOs and grassroots movements will also find something useful in the critiques. This book offers large parts of the book are actually written in a non-academic mode for the non-specialists. This book is the result of a three-day conference held in April 2014 at the University of Montreal, Canada, discussing the relevance of the work of Hegel and Marx in today's world, particularly with regard to the ecological, economic, political and anthropological crisis facing humanity. Accordingly, the book is an exploration of the specific nature of the crisis we face both in our everyday lives and in the realm of theory. However, if indeed the necessity of a proper critique, kritikos, is intimately linked to a state of crisis, krisis, the conceptual frame necessary to produce such a critique may itself be in crisis. Among the vast number of critical oppositions to contemporary capitalism, what are the keys available to understand the present forms of human conditions, alienation and exploitation, controversies and divisions among the different tendencies within the critical tradition tend to highlight the point that there is also a theoretical crisis which prevents a proper diagnosis of the actual crisis and prevents in turn a proper plan of action from being established looking back to marx and hegel allowed a return if not to the sources at least to two unavoidable influences among the various critical approaches to capitalism be it with or against hegel and or marx the criticisms of modernity post modernity and capitalism cannot neglect the shadows of these thinkers both marx s and hegel s philosophical sociological and political enterprises must be linked historically to the will to diagnose and solve what they saw as the most important crises of their own time from in hegel s case the spiritual crisis which followed the advent of modernity and its accompanying turmoil to the social and political crisis caused by capitalism and the advent of a new industrial society in marx s case both intellectual ventures are at every turn haunted by the notion of crisis this book will appeal to anyone interested in hegel s and marx s philosophical and political theories not only does it provide the historical context necessary to understand properly the relation between marx and hegel but it also places the relevance of their teachings for the contemporary reader in perspective to find more information on rowman littlefield titles please visit us at rowmanlittlefield.com hermeneutics can loosely be defined as the theory or philosophy of the interpretation of menaing it is a central topic in the philosophy of the social sciences the philosophy of art and language and in literary criticism this book first published in 1980 gives a detailed overview and analysis of the main strands of contemporary hermeneutical thought it includes a number of readings in order to give the reader a first hand acquaintance with the subjects and the debates within it this is a book about the power game currently being played out between two symbiotic cultural institutions the university and the novel as the number of hyper knowledgeable literary fans grows students and researchers in english departments waver between dismissing and harnessing voices outside the academy meanwhile the role that the university plays in contemporary literary fiction is becoming increasingly complex and metafictional moving far beyond the campus novel of the mid
