with the rapid development of artificial intelligence and the emergence of various new sensors autonomous driving has grown in popularity in recent years the implementation of autonomous driving requires new sources of sensory data such as cameras radars and lidars and the algorithm processing requires a high degree of parallel computing in this regard traditional cpus have insufficient computing power while dsps are good at image processing but lack sufficient performance for deep learning although gpus are good at training they are too power hungry which can affect vehicle performance therefore this book looks to the future arguing that custom asics are bound to become mainstream with the goal of ics design for autonomous driving this book discusses the theory and engineering practice of designing future oriented autonomous driving soc chips the content is divided into thirteen chapters the first chapter mainly introduces readers to the current challenges and research directions in autonomous driving chapters 2 6 focus on algorithm design for perception and planning control chapters 7 10 address the optimization of deep learning models and the design of deep learning chips while chapters 11 12 cover automatic driving software architecture design chapter 13 discusses the 5g application on autonomous driving this book is suitable for all undergraduates graduate students and engineering technicians who are interested in autonomous driving

this set of papers represents a unique collection it is the first attempt ever to empirically test a hypothetical set of semantic and lexical universals across a number of genetically and typologically diverse languages in fact the word collection is not fully appropriate in this case since the papers report research undertaken specifically for the present volume and shaped by the same guidelines they constitute parallel and strictly comparable answers to the same set of questions coordinated effort with a common aim and a common methodology the goal of identifying the universal human concepts found in all languages is of fundamental importance both from a theoretical and a practical point of view since these concepts provide the basis of the psychic unity of mankind underlying the clearly visible diversity of human cultures they also allow us to better understand that diversity itself because they provide a common measure without which no precise and meaningful comparisons are possible at all a set of truly universal or even near universal concepts can provide us with an invaluable tool for interpreting and explaining all the culture specific meanings encoded in the language and culture systems of the world it can also provide us with a tool for explaining meanings across cultures in education business trade international relations and so on the book contains 13 chapters on individual languages including japanese by masayuki onishi chinese by hilary chappel thai by anthony diller ewe africa by felix ameka miskitu languages of south america by kenneth hall australian aboriginal languages aranda yankunytjatjara and kayardild by jean harkins david wilkins cliff goddard and nicholas evans the austronesian languages samoan longgu acehnese and mangap mbula by ulrike mosel deborah hill mark durie and robert bugenhagen the papuan language kalam by andrew pawley and last but not least french by bert peters in addition to the chapters on individual languages the book includes three theoretical chapters semantic theory and semantic universals by goddard introducing lexical primitives by goddard and wierzbicka and semantic primitives across languages a critical review by wierzbicka
