during the past century among the key issues explored is a peculiar dichotomy of american advertising that served as a conservative reflection of society and at the same time became an underlying force of progressive social change the study shows how advertisers of housekeeping products perpetuated the happy homemaker stereotype while tobacco and cosmetics marketers dismantled women's stereotypes to create an entirely new type of consumer life magazine is the treasured photographic magazine that chronicled the 20th century it now lives on at life.com the largest most amazing late night snack to a cold beer there's nothing that whets the appetite quite like the suctioning sound of a refrigerator being opened in the early 1930s fewer than ten percent of us households had a mechanical refrigerator but today they are nearly universal the primary means by which we keep our food and drink fresh yet for as ubiquitous as refrigerators are most of us take them for granted letting them blend into the background of our kitchens basements garages and all the other places where they seem so perfectly convenient in this book helen peavitt amplifies the hum of the refrigerator in technological history showing us just how it became such an essential appliance peavitt takes us to the early closets cabinets and boxes into which we first started packing ice and the various things we were trying to keep cool from there she charts the development of mechanical and chemical technologies that have led to modern day refrigeration on both industrial and domestic scales showing how these technologies have created a completely new method of preserving and transporting perishable goods having a profound impact on society from the nineteenth century and on she explores the ways the marketing of refrigerators have expressed and influenced our notions of domestic life and she looks at how refrigeration has altered the agriculture and food industries as well as our own appetites strikingly illustrated this book offers an informative and entertaining history of an object that has radically changed in a little over one hundred years one of the most important things we studies all electric narratives is the first in depth study of time saving electrical appliances in american literature it examines the literary depiction of refrigerators vacuum cleaners oven ranges washing machines dryers dishwashers toasters blenders standing and hand held mixers and microwave ovens between 1945 when the all electric home came to be associated with the nation s hard won victory and 2020 as contemporary writers consider the enduring material and spiritual effects of these objects in the 21st century the appropriation and subversion of the rhetoric of domestic electrification and time saving comprises a crucial but overlooked element in 20th century literary forms and genres including beat literature black american literature second wave feminist fiction science fiction and postmodernist fiction through close readings of dozens of literary texts alongside print and television ads from this period dini shows how u s writers have unearthed the paradoxes inherent to claims of appliances capacity to give back time to their user transport them into a technologically progressive future or return them to some pastoral past in so doing she reveals literary appliances role in raising questions about gender norms and sexuality racial exclusion and erasure class anxieties the ramifications of mechanization the perils and possibilities of conformity the limitations of patriotism and the inevitable fallacy of utopian thinking while both shaping and radically disrupting the literary forms in which they operated life magazine is the treasured photographic magazine
