two of the world s most pressing needs biodiversity conservation and agricultural development in the third world are addressed in karl s zimmerer s multidisciplinary investigation in geography zimmerer challenges current opinion by showing that the world renowned diversity of crops grown in the andes may not be as hopelessly endangered as is widely believed he uses the lengthy history of small scale farming by indians in peru including contemporary practices and attitudes to shed light on prospects for the future during prolonged fieldwork among peru s quechua peasants and villagers in the mountains near cuzco zimmerer found convincing evidence that much of the region s biodiversity is being skillfully conserved on a de facto basis as has been true during centuries of tumultuous agrarian transitions diversity occurs unevenly however because of the inability of poorer quechua farmers to plant the same variety as their well off neighbors and because land use pressures differ in different locations social political and economic upheavals have accentuated the unevenness and zimmerer s geographical findings are all the more important as a result diversity is indeed at serious risk but not necessarily for the same reasons that have been cited by others the originality of this study is in its correlation of ecological conservation ethnic expression and economic development
