not try a dinosaur's day deinonychus goes hunting and a dinosaur's day diplodocus finds its family a fearsome dinosaur stomps around on two legs it swipes its sharp claws and shows off its pointy teeth was that monster a giganotosaurus or was it a spinosaurus these dinosaurs looked similar but they were very different read this book to become an expert at telling these look-alikes apart when joel and olivia sit down to dinner with two of their favorite dinosaurs olivia can't help but point out that her dinosaur is better olivia's dinosaur can play the trumpet while riding her bike and her house is in the shape of a rabbit her dinosaur can make her own jam and she even eats electric eels but joel's dinosaur can swim like a shark and his teeth sometimes glow in the dark and he's really good at jumping and sliding on his knees he has x-ray vision and he's not afraid of bees of course with so many impressive qualities it's hard to say which dinosaur is really better but things get even trickier when a third dinosaur joins them at the dinner table what could be more fearsome than a dinosaur that once ate a volcano and wears slippers the color of rainbows the wonderfully funny imaginative and vibrant illustrations are perfectly matched to this new take on a dinosaur story and the loosely rhyming text is hilarious and unexpected with a battle unlike any dinosaur fight you've seen before this book is perfect for all dinosaur lovers siblings and parents alike simon coster's debut picture book is a worthwhile addition to any child's library and is sure to get some giggles discover the latest frontiers in dinosaur research with dr david hone ever since we first started discovering dinosaurs in the early 1800s our obsession for uncovering everything about these creatures has been insatiable each generation has made huge strides in trying to better our understanding of these animals and in the past twenty years we have made more discoveries than in the previous two hundred there have been extraordinary advances in palaeontological methods and ever more dinosaur fossils promise a landslide of new data and huge leaps forward in our understanding of these incredible animals over time we have been bale to look at the sizes and shapes of bones we have identified patches of fossil skin we have looked at footprints and bite marks and we've calculated mass estimates and walking speeds with surprisingly little data to work from we can put together a picture of an animal that has been extinct for a million human lifetimes but for all our technological advances and two centuries of new data and ideas there is still much more we don't know what parasites and diseases afflicted them how did they communicate did they climb trees how many species were there in the future of dinosaurs palaeontologist dr david hone looks at the recent strides in scientific research and the advanced knowledge we've gathered in recent years as well as what we hope to learn in the future about these most fascinating of extinct creatures
