part memoir part detective story part untold history of museums the museum makers is a fascinating and moving family story rachel morris is one of the smartest storytellers i have ever met a wonderful and beguiling book james rebanks author of the shepherd s life without even thinking i began to slide all these things from the dusty boxes under my bed into groups on the carpet to take a guess at what belonged to whom to match up photographs and handwriting to memories and names in other words to sort and classify as i did so i had the revelation that in what we do with our memories and the stuff that our parents leave behind we are all museum makers seeking to makes sense of the past museum expert rachel morris had been ignoring the boxes under her bed for decades when she finally opened them an entire bohemian family history was laid bare the experience was revelatory searching for her absent father in the archives of the tate understanding the loss and longings of the grandmother who raised her and transported her back to the museums that had enriched her lonely childhood by teasing out the stories of those early museum makers and the unsung daughters and wives behind them and seeing the same passions and mistakes reflected in her own family morris digs deep into the human instinct for collection and curation

Sacred and Stolen

sacred and stolen is the memoir of an art museum director with the courage to reveal what goes on behind the scenes gary vikan lays bare the messy underbelly of museum life looted antiquities crooked dealers deluded collectors duplicitous public officials fakes inside thefts bribery and failed exhibitions these backstories at once shocking and comical reveal a man with a taste for adventure an eagerness to fan the flames of excitement and comfort with the chaos that often ensued a minnesota kid who started out as a printer s devil in his father s small town newspaper vikan ended up as the director of the walters art museum a gem of a museum in baltimore sacred and stolen reveals his quest to bring the holy into the museum experience as he struggles to reconcile his passion for acquiring sacred works of art with his suspicion that they were stolen the cast of characters in his many adventures include the elegant french oil heiress dominique de menil the notorious turkish smuggler aydin dikmen his slippery dutch dealer michel van rijm the inscrutable and implacable patriarchs of ethiopia and georgia and the charismatic president of georgia eduard shevardnadze along with a mysterious thief of a gorgeous renoir painting missing from a museum for over sixty years when the painting suddenly shows up it s vikan who tracks down the culprit in his afterword vikan explains his coming to grips with the realities of art dealing in our present dangerous world that includes the fanatical iconoclasm of the islamic state we know of the violent destruction and looting of precious treasures of antiquity and unscrupulous black market art dealers who take advantage of international conflicts to possess them sacred and stolen is a truly eye opening account of art dealing in the modern world art museums takes the study of international relations to the art museum it seeks to persuade those who study international relations to take art museums seriously and museum studies to take up the insights of international relations and it does so at a time when both international relations and art are said to be at an end that is out of control and beyond sight of their usual constituencies the book focuses on the british museum the national gallery of london the museum of iraq the museum of modern art in new york the getty museums the guggenheim museums and museum spaces instantly created by the attacks on the world trade center in 2001 the art includes works over which museums might struggle acquire through questionable means hoard and possibly lose such as the parthenon sculptures raphael s madonna of the pinks the ancient art of babylon modern art and the art museum itself in an era of rapid museum expansion bringing art museums and international relations together draws on the art technique of collage which combines disparate objects themes and time periods in one work to juxtapose unexpected elements leaving the viewer to relate objects that are not where they are expected to be the transformation of museums from the dreary dusty places they used to be to places that people want to be in alongside objects they want to be near and ideas they want to understand and then share has been extraordinary during the last twenty five years millions of pounds have been poured into our national museums in the uk as a result they are certainly brighter and fuller it is against this background that dinah casson has opened the service entrance of the museum a little 0this book is not an explanation of what an exhibition designer does or how to do it instead by means of a series of essays punctuated with comments from collaborators and visitors it explores exhibition design and alerts the visitor s eye to this invisible craft it explores questions such as why are most paintings in carved gilded frames regardless of artist period or subject matter why do so few contemporary art galleries have windows if a label text irritates us what should it say instead why do facsimiles make some people so uncomfortable why do we keep all this stuff what is it that visitors want from our museums in doing so it offers enjoyable insights which will add depth to our future visits through the front door which is usually closed on mondays and will make us question what is shown why it s shown where and how it is what s written about it and how the interaction between museums and their designers has encouraged each to change the victorian era heralded an age of transformation in which momentous changes in the field of natural history coincided with the rise of new visual technologies concurrently different parts of the british empire began to more actively claim their right to being acknowledged as indispensable contributors to knowledge and the progress of empire this book addresses the complex relationship between natural history and photography from the 1850s to the 1880s in britain and its colonies australia new zealand and to a lesser extent india coinciding with the rise of the modern museum photography s arrival was timely and it rapidly became an essential technology for recording and publicising rare objects and valuable collections also during this period the medium assumed a more significant role in the professional practices and reputations of naturalists than has been previously recognized and it figured increasingly within the expanding specialized networks that were central to the production and dissemination of new knowledge in an interrogation that ranges from the first forays into museum photography and early attempts to document collecting expeditions to the importance of traditional and photographic portraiture for the recognition of scientific discoveries this book not only recasts the parameters of what we actually identify as natural history photography in the victorian era but also how we understand the very structure of empire in relation to this genre at that time excerpt from the museum and popular culture we are apt to underestimate the importance of origins in appraising present day institutions we judge the development of museums as instruments for popular learning in science in history and in art as if the objective of widespread knowledge among the masses had always been an avowed aim of our culture in historical fact we have had less than two centuries of open acknowledgment of a general right of access to the uncensored tools of learning in many fields particularly those that touch upon the domain of theology or human biology such freedom as exists for the untrammelled propagation of facts and opinions is of very recent origin for at least ten centuries during the formative period of our christian era the widespread propagation of critical and factual information concerning man and his environment was not only physically difficult but also anathema to all the powers that ruled the community of christendom about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

Being Modern
