excerpt from the american journal of obstetrics and gynecology vol 2 july 1921 december 1921 two methods at present are commonly employed one the introduction of a foreign body within the uterus to stimulate uterine contraction or the stimulation of the uterine contractions by rupturing the membranes and lessening the quantity of amniotic liquid or second the administration of drugs the induction of labor by psychic effect while occasionally successful is unreliable in inducing labor it is well not to ignore the mechanism of labor the unshortened and unsoftened cervix requires something more than simple stretching in a lateral direction at right angles to the long axis of the uterus the dilating bag does not favor the softening or retraction of the cervix and this is one of the disadvantages attending this method the introduction of bougies or a rectal tube or gauze promotes the softening of the cervix its retraction and
