Testing Fresh Expressions 2016-04-01

testing fresh expressions investigates whether fresh expressions of church really do what is claimed for them by the fresh expressions movement and in particular whether their unique approach helps to reverse trends of decline experienced by traditional churches part 1 examines those claims and untangles their sociological and theological assumptions from a careful study of factors underlying attendance decline and growth part 2 argues that long term decline can be resisted only if churches are better able to attract children the non churched or both part 3 tests the comparative ability of a group of growing parish churches and a group of fresh expressions to resist trends of decline and discovers some intriguing social dynamics common to both groups part 4 argues that fresh expressions do not fulfil the unique role often claimed for them but that they do have the capacity to help reinvigorate the whole church recent days have seen a debate among evangelicals over how the death of christ is to be interpreted when a popular british evangelical leader appeared to denounce the idea that god was punishing christ in our place on the cross as a twisted version of events morally dubious and a huge barrier to faith that should be rejected in favour of preaching only that god is love major controversy was stirred many thought the idea of penal substitution was at the heart of the evangelical understanding of the cross if not the only legitimate interpretation of the death of christ yet for some time less popular evangelical theologians had been calling this traditional interpretation of the atonement into question so is the traditional evangelical view of penal substitution the biblical explanation of christ s death or one of many is it the non negotiable heart of evangelical theology or a time bound explanation that has outlived its usefulness what does the cross say about the character of god the nature of the law and sin the meaning of grace and our approach to missions the public debate which resulted was often heated in order to act as reconcilers the evangelical alliance and the london school of theology called for a symposium in which advocates of the different positions could engage with each other the symposium which was attended by some 200 participants was held when the july 7th bombings took place in london and drew together many of britain s finest evangelical theologians this book contains the collection of papers given at the symposium supplemented by a few others for the sake of rounding out the agenda and grouped in convenient sections this report is the committee s second inquiry in the effect of the economic downturn on the people of the region the committee s terms of reference are what problems exist and how their effect can be minimised in advance of an economic upturn how effectively government agencies and other regional bodies are addressing these problems and what advice and assistance people need to help them live more sustainable lifestyles in the future the committee was particularly interested in the level of indebtedness and home repossessions availability of appropriate training the adequacy of assistance and social cohesion the committee is concerned that some of those areas most in need of additional government assistance may not be aware of new funding available and do not have the capacity to bid for it they understand that the taskforce should not be seen as the answer to every problem in the region and that it was set up to focus on the initial economic impact of the downturn however the taskforce has reach within the region and uninhibited connection to whitehall it is also recognised that the region s third sector has not been as fully engaged as they had hoped a goal of mine ever since becoming an educational researcher has been to help construct a sound theory to guide instructional practice for far too long educational practice has suffered because we have lacked firm instructional guidelines which in my view should be based on sound psychological theory which in turn should be based on sound neurological theory in other words teachers need to know how to teach and that how to teach should be based solidly on how people learn and how their brains function as you will see in this book my answer to the question of how people learn is that we all learn by spontaneously generating and testing ideas idea generating involves analogies and testing requires comparing predicted consequences with actual consequences we learn this way because the brain is essentially an idea generating and testing machine but there is more to it than this the very process of generating and testing ideas results not only in the construction of ideas that work i e the learning of useful declarative knowledge but also in improved skill in learning i e the development of improved procedural knowledge
