the chapters in the book were meticulously chosen by the author these are national occurrences combined with personal experiences i had the impression that all adults at some point in their lives have witnessed something whether good or bad but decided not to intervene many of the readers probably have witnessed an unqualified person at work knowing the right things to say and were promoted far beyond their competency you ask yourself if anyone besides you sees what is going on maybe from the book a reader may gain some information on why he or she cannot seem to keep neighbors a laundry list of possible behaviors may be of value to peoples other than the reader from this laundry list one may become enlightened and may see many of the listings are quite common to where they live a highlight for the author is the mentioning of black on black crimes there is a cry for help even from the author s point of view our leaders are quite aware the problem is quite real but there seems to be little to no emphasis on solving this issue racial discrimination are sensitive words many words mentioned in the book may have matured and are past their expiration date as a black man i often believe these words are used too freely and it seems to be a deterrent to the actual root cause i did want all readers to know there was never a request for reparations if there was ever a decision for reparations what would be the criteria for blacks with enslaved ancestors the book also was written to stimulate those who knowingly have information to a solution to get involved and not to accept the encounter as unseen to all our nation is changing in color in thoughts and in protest do you see or not see the shift what is your choice and what will be your involvement

Seeing the Unseen

the book of esther is a small gem embedded within the vast old testament scriptures it's easy to overlook because it doesn't present lofty doctrine or mysterious prophecies in fact it doesn't even mention god it simply follows the experiences of two jewish cousins esther and mordecai who lived during the time of israel's exile following the babylonian conquest of judah and jerusalem in one sense esther's story was the story of all the jewish exiles living under persian rule but in another sense her story was unique and remarkable unforeseen events and circumstances saw her emerge from obscurity as a young hebrew woman to become the queen of the mightiest empire the world had ever known but behind esther's good fortune stood the eternal purpose of esther's god in a way that is both mysterious and thrilling the story reveals an ever faithful god who accomplishes his unchanging will for the world not in the whirlwind but the still small voice not with spectacular displays of power but with an unremarkable and often undetected hand adding its own unique voice to the scriptural chorus the book of esther reveals and exalts the unseen silent and seemingly absent god whose loving designs are enduring and undaunted the god who in every circumstance is worthy of complete trust and devotion it all started with nathanael johnson s decision to teach his daughter the name of every tree they passed on their walk to day care in san francisco this project turned into a quest to discover the secrets of the neighborhood s flora and fauna and yielded more than names and trivia johnson developed a relationship with his nonhuman neighbors johnson argues that learning to see the world afresh like a child shifts the way we think about nature instead of something distant and abstract nature becomes real all at once comical annoying and beautiful this shift can add tremendous value to our lives and it might just be the first step in saving the world no matter where we live city country oceanside or mountains there are wonders that we walk past every day unseen city widens the pinhole of our perspective by allowing us to view the world from the high altitude eyes of a turkey vulture and the distinctly low altitude eyes of a snail the narrative allows us to eavesdrop on the comically frenetic life of a squirrel and peer deep into the past with a ginkgo biloba tree each of these organisms has something unique to tell us about our neighborhoods and chapter by chapter unseen city takes us on a journey that is part nature lesson and part love letter to the world s urban jungles with the right perspective a walk to the subway can be every bit as entrancing as a walk through a national park
