in the eighteenth century literature meant learned writings by the twentieth century literature had come to be identified with imaginative aesthetically significant works and academic literary studies had developed special protocols for interpreting and valuing literary texts literature in the making examines what happened in between how literature came to be more precisely specified and valued how it was organized into genres canons and national traditions and how it became the basis for departments of modern languages and literatures in research universities modern literature the version of literature familiar today was an international invention but it was forged when literary cultures traditions and publishing industries were mainly organized nationally literature in the making examines modern literature s coalescence and institutionalization in the united states considered as an instructive instance of a phenomenon that was going global since modern literature initially offered a way to formulate the value of legacy texts by authors such as homer cervantes and shakespeare however the development of literature and literary culture in the u s was fundamentally transnational literature in the making argues that shakespeare studies one of the richest tracts of nineteenth century u s literary culture was a key domain in which literature came to be valued both for fuelling modern projects and for safeguarding values and practices that modernity put at risk a foundational paradox that continues to shape literary studies and literary culture bringing together the histories of literature s competing conceptualizations its print infrastructure its changing status in higher education and its life in public culture during the long nineteenth century literature in the making offers a robust account of how and why literature mattered then and matters now by highlighting the lively collaboration between academics and non academics that prevailed before the ascendancy of the research university starkly divided experts from amateurs literature in the making also opens new possibilities for envisioning how academics might partner with the reading public this book analyses the founding years of consumer law and consumer policy in europe it combines two dimensions the making of national consumer law and the making of european consumer law and how both are intertwined the chapters on germany italy the nordic countries and the united kingdom serve to explain the economic and the political background which led to different legal and policy approaches in the then old member states from the 1960s onwards the chapter on poland adds a different layer the one of a former socialist country with its own consumer law and how joining the eu affected consumer law at the national level the making of european consumer law started in the 1970s rather cautiously but gradually the european commission took an ever stronger position in promoting not only european consumer law but also in supporting the building of the european consumer organisation beuc the umbrella organisation of the national consumer bodies the book unites the early protagonists who were involved in the making of consumer law in europe guido alpa ludwig krämer ewa letowska hans w micklitz klaus tonner iain ramsay and thomas wilhelmsson supported by the younger generation aneta wiewiórowska domagalska mateusz grochowski and koen docter who reconstructs the history of beuc niklas olsen and thomas roethe analyse the construction of this policy field from a historical and sociological perspective this book offers a unique opportunity to understand a legal and political field that of consumer law and policy which plays a fundamental role in our contemporary societies the idea that home is a special place a separate place a place where we can be our true selves is so obvious to us today that we barely pause to think about it but as judith flanders shows in this revealing book home is a relatively new concept when in 1900 dorothy assured the citizens of oz that there is no place like home she was expressing a view that was a culmination of 300 years of economic physical and emotional change in the making of home flanders traces the evolution of the house across northern europe and america from the sixteenth to the early twentieth century and paints a striking picture of how the homes we know today differ from homes through history the transformation of houses into homes she argues was not a private matter but an essential ingredient in the rise of capitalism and the birth of the industrial revolution without home the modern world as we know it would not exist and as flanders charts the development of ordinary household objects from cutlery chairs and curtains to fitted kitchens plumbing and windows she also peels back the myths that surround some of our most basic assumptions including our entire notion of what it is that makes a family as full of fascinating detail as her previous bestsellers the making of home is also a book teeming with original and provocative ideas writer f scott fitzgerald s career itself is a metaphor for the vagaries of book publishing if fitzgerald would have had his way we would today refer to the great gatsby as either gold hatted gatsby trimalchio in west egg or the high bouncing lover a few years before gatsby fitzgerald had become a literary sensation at the age of 23 helen hooven santmyer a contemporary of fitzgerald s would not have a successful novel published until she was 88 and living in a nursing home in this book the author explores that mysterious place in publishing where art and commerce can either clash mesh or both along the way a wide range of authors from the literary greats to today s commercial superstars editors agents and publishers share their thoughts insights and experiences what inspires writers john steinbeck for example wrote every novel as if it were his last as if death were imminent why are some books successful and appreciated while others fall into oblivion the answers are often elusive never absolute but the stories and anecdotes are always fascinating this book recalls an era when criticism could change the way we look at the world in the tradition of matthew arnold and edmund wilson james wood reads literature expansively always pursuing its role and destiny in our lives in a series of essays about such figures as melville flaubert chekhov virginia woolf and don delillo wood relates their fiction to questions of religious and philosophical belief he suggests that the steady ebb of the sea of faith has much to do with the revolutionary power of the novel as it has developed over the last two centuries to read james wood is to be shocked into both thinking and feeling how great our debt to the novel is in the grand tradition of criticism wood s work is both commentary and literature in its own right fiercely written polemical and richly poetic in style this book marks the debut of a masterly literary voice when women were admitted to the royal academy schools in 1860 female art students gained a foothold in the most conservative art institution in england the royal female college of art the south kensington schools and the slade school of fine art also produced increasing numbers of women artists their entry into a male dominated art world altered the perspective of other artists and the public they came from disparate levels of society princess louise the fourth daughter of queen victoria studied sculpture at the national art training school yet they all shared ambition talent and courage analyzing their education and careers this book argues that the women who attended the art schools during the 1860s and 1870s including kate greenaway elizabeth butler helen allingham evelyn de morgan and henrietta rae produced work that would accommodate yet subtly challenge the orthodoxies of the fine art establishment without their contributions victorian art would be not simply the poorer but hardly recognizable to us today
