Modern French Poetry

the richness and diversity of poetic voices in france since the mid twentieth century sharpen the challenge of charting the poetic landscape in ways that are accessible and cohesive since poetry in france has long demonstrated a predisposition to philosophical questions palimpsests of the real in recent french poetry reads the work of six poets through the lens of the pre socratics the poets discussed range from the well known jacques dupin andré du bouchet eugène guillevic to the lesser celebrated jean louis chrétien céline zins and emmanuel hoccquard what binds these six together is an interest in the real and a fascination with the ways of sensing one s world of experiencing time unity memory and change for each poet the aesthetic character of the work takes precedence and its presentation is informed by the philosophical groundwork laid by ancient thinkers written not only for specialists but also for students and all readers with a general interest in literature and poetry this book provides introductory material to each poet considered as well as offers critical readings that never stray far from the poetic texts perpetual motion is a collection of studies which aims to offer new sightlines between surrealism the age of andre breton 1896 1966 and the postmodernism of such contemporary poets as pierre alferi 1963 for sheringham a sense of motion and plasticity flows through the last century of french poetry and reveals itself through themes of rhythm inspiration sensation love colour and the city both as an imaginative space and an incitement to new identities and ways of being in the world it has been a rich century indeed for french poetry and in addition to breton and alferi talents as singular yet also as representative as victor segalen guillaume apollinaire raymond queneau jules supervielle yves Bonnefoy philippe jaccottet jacques roubaud michel deguy and jacques reda all make appearances in these pages michael sheringham was marshal foch professor of french literature at the university of oxford from 2004 to 2015 and was fellow of all souls college and a fellow of the british academy his book everyday life 2006 a literary and philosophical investigation into the elusive nature of the quotidian is widely considered a classic of modern scholarly writing
