american political history has been built around narratives of crisis in which what counts are the moments when seemingly stable political orders collapse and new ones rise from the ashes but while crisis centered frameworks can make sense of certain dimensions of political culture partisan change and governance they also often steal attention from the production of categories like race gender and citizenship status that transcend the usual break points in american history brent cebul lily geismer and mason b williams have brought together first rate scholars from a wide range of subfields who are making structures of state power not moments of crisis or partisan realignment integral to their analyses all of the contributors see political history as defined less by elite subjects than by tensions between state and economy state and society and state and subject tensions that reveal continuities as much as disjunctures this broader definition incorporates investigations of the crosscurrents of power race and identity the recent turns toward the history of capitalism and transnational history and an evolving understanding of american political development that cuts across eras of seeming liberal conservative or neoliberal ascendance the result is a rich revelation of what political history is today today there are more states controlling more people than at any other point in history we live in a world shaped by the authority of the state yet the complexion of state authority is patchy and uneven while it is almost always possible to trace the formal rules governing human interaction to the statute books of one state or another in reality the words in these books often have little bearing upon what is happening on the ground their meanings are intentionally and unintentionally misrepresented by those who are supposed to enforce them and by those who are supposed to obey them generating a range of competing authorities voices and allegiances the everyday life of the state explores this everyday transformation of state authority into multiple scripts narratives and political activities drawing upon case studies from across the middle east north africa and asia the chapters in this book investigate the many ways in which those subjects traditionally regarded as being weak passive and obedient manage not only to resist the authority of state actors but to actively subvert and appropriate it in the process making unmaking and remaking the boundaries between state and society over and over again collectively these chapters make an important contribution to the expanding literature on everyday politics
