from japan in 1919 so that he might study english language and literature and who stayed to make a home on the night of december 7 1941 the fbi knocked at the matsushita's door and took iwao away first to jail at the seattle immigration station and then by special train windows sealed and guards at the doors to montana he was considered an enemy alien potentially dangerous to public safety because of his japanese birth and professional associations the story of iwao matsushita's determination to clear his name and be reunited with his wife and of hanaye matsushita's growing confusion and despair unfolds in their correspondence presented here in full their cards and letters most written in japanese some in english when censors insisted provided us with the first look at life inside fort missoula one of the justice department's wartime camp for enemy aliens because iwao was fluent in both english and japanese his communications are always articulate even lyrical if restrained hanaye communicated briefly and awkwardly in english more fully and openly in japanese fiset presents a most affecting human story and helps us to read between the lines to understand what was happening to this gentle sensitive pair hanaye suffered the emotional torment of disruption and displacement from everything safe and familiar iwao a scholarly man who despite his imprisonment did not falter in his commitment to his adopted country suffered the ignominy of suspicion of being disloyal after the war he worked as a subject specialist at the university of washington's far eastern library and served as principal of seattle's japanese language school faithful to the japanese american community until his death in 1979 during world war ii over 5 500 young japanese americans left the concentration camps to which they had been confined with their families in order to attend college storied lives describes often in their own words how nisei students found schools to attend outside the west coast exclusion zone and the efforts of white americans to help them the book is concerned with the deeds of white and japanese americans in a mutual struggle against racism and argues that asian american studies indeed race relations as a whole will benefit from an understanding not only of racism but also of its opposition antiracism to uncover this little known story gary okihiro surveyed the colleges and universities the nisei attended collected oral histories from nisei students and student relocation staff members and examined the records of the national japanese american student relocation council and other materials 2004 washington state book award finalist judgment without trial reveals that long before the 1941 attack on pearl harbor the u s government began making plans for the eventual internment and later incarceration of the japanese american population tetsuden kashima uses newly obtained records to trace this process back to the 1920s when a nascent imprisonment organization was developed to prepare for a possible war with japan and follows it in detail through the war years along with coverage of the well known incarceration camps the author discusses the less familiar and very different experiences of people of japanese descent in the justice and war departments internment camps that held internees from the continental u s and from alaska hawaii and latin america utilizing extracts from diaries contemporary sources official communications and interviews kashima brings an array of personalities to life on the pages of his book those whose unbiased assessments of america's japanese ancestry population were discounted or ignored those whose works and actions were based on misinformed fears and racial animosities those who tried to remedy the inequities of the system and by no means least the prisoners themselves kashima's interest in this episode began with his own unanswered questions about his father's wartime experiences from this very personal motivation he has produced a panoramic and detailed picture without rhetoric and emotionalism and supported at every step by documented fact of a government that failed to protect a group of people for whom it had forcibly assumed total responsibility from the 1930s through the 1970s chinese american owned supermarkets located outside of chinatown catering to a non chinese clientele and featuring mainstream american foods and other products and services rose to prominence and phenomenal success in northern california only to decline as union regulations and competition from national chains made their operation unprofitable alfred yee's study of this trajectory is an insider's view of a fascinating era in asian american immigration and entrepreneurship drawing on oral interviews with individuals who worked in the business during its peak and decline he presents an accessible history that illustrates how this once thriving business fostered the social and economic integration of chinese americans into life in the united states yee demonstrates how chinese american supermarkets were able to sell american groceries at reduced prices by using the cheap labor of chinese immigrants and immigrants whose entry to the united states had been sponsored by the lancaster foundations of nursing in the community access symbiotic relationship was eventually undermined by labor unions demands that employees be covered by labor laws and fully compensated for all hours worked also contributing to the ultimate demise of chinese american supermarkets were increasing costs of capitalization and operation the dominance of national chain stores and difficulties arising from traditional chinese methods of business management in this vibrant and original novel christopher columbus wong orphan son of a chinatown bachelor community is trying to invent a family for himself while all around him american popular culture is reinventing itself with sex drugs and rock n roll christopher finds himself on a wild journey with his gay older brother peter a pan pacific tv chef the defrocked deranged and eroding ex director of a chinatown settlement house reverend ted candlewick the sharp eyed conspiring matriarch auntie mary the bridge between the conflicting values that make up this cultural stew and uncle lincoln a bachelor short order cook and quite possibly christopher and peter s father further complicating christopher s voyage are his ex wives winnie a hong kong immigrant looking for a green card and melba an american orphan of the counterculture set against the backdrop of america s wars in asia and the assimilation of that experience the refugees the stereotypes the food eat everything before you die is an ironic commentary on the identities the children of chinese american immigrants concoct from their questionable histories cultural practices and survival strategies chan s riotous the long term effects on japanese americans of their world war ii experiences forced removal from their pacific coast homes incarceration in desolate government camps and ultimate resettlement as part of seattle s densho japanese american legacy project the authors collected interviews and survey data from japanese americans now living in king county washington who were imprisoned during world war ii their clear eyed often poignant account presents the contemporary post redress perspectives of former incarcerated on their experiences and the consequences for their life course using descriptive material that personalizes and contextualizes the data the authors show how prewar socioeconomic networks and the specific characteristics of the incarceration experience affected japanese american readjustment in the postwar era topics explored include the effects of incarceration and resettlement on social health relationships and community structure educational and occupational trajectories for men and women and military service and draft resistance the consequences of incarceration and location and religious orientation are also examined the story of the world war ii internment of 120 000 japanese american citizens and japanese born permanent residents is well known by now less well known is the history of the small group of seattle activists who gave birth to the national movement for redress it was they who first conceived of petitioning the u s congress to demand a public apology and monetary compensation for the individuals and the community whose constitutional rights had been violated robert sadamu shimabukuro using hundreds of interviews with people who lived in the internment camps and with people who initiated the campaign for redress has constructed a very personal testimony a monument to these courageous organizers determination and deep reverence for justice born in seattle follows these pioneers and their movement over more than two decades starting in the late 1960s with second generation japanese american engineers at the boeing company as they and gender however in cities of others xiaojing zhou uncovers a much different narrative providing the most comprehensive examination to date of how asian american writers both celebrated and overlooked depict urban settings zhou goes beyond examining popular portrayals of chinatowns by paying equal attention to life in other parts of the city her innovative and wide ranging approach sheds new light on the works of chinese filipino indian japanese korean and vietnamese american writers who bear witness to a variety of urban experiences and reimagine the american city as other than a segregated nation space drawing on critical theories on space from urban geography ecocriticism and postcolonial studies zhou shows how spatial organization shapes identity in the works of sui sin far bienvenido santos meena alexander frank chin chang rae lee karen tei yamashita and others she also shows how the everyday practices of asian american communities challenge racial segregation reshape urban spaces and redefine the identity of the american city from a reimagining of the nineteenth century flaneur figure in an asian american context to providing a framework that allows readers to see ethnic enclaves and american cities as mutually constitutive and transformative zhou gives us a provocative new way to understand some of the most important works of asian american literature this is the first collection of letters by a member of the legendary 442nd combat team which served in italy and france during world war ii written to his wife by a medic serving with the segregated japanese american unit the letters describe a soldier s daily life minoru masuda was born and raised in seattle in 1939 he earned a master s degree in pharmacology and married hana koriyama two years later the japanese struck pearl harbor and min and hana were imprisoned along with thousands of other japanese americans when the army recruited in the relocation camp masuda chose to serve in the 442nd in april 1944 the unit was shipped overseas they fought in italy and in france where they liberated bruyeres and rescued a lost battalion that had been cut off by the germans after the german surrender on may 3 1945 masuda was among the last of the original volunteers to leave europe he arrived home on new year s eve 1945 masuda s vivid and lively letters portray his surroundings his daily activities and the people he encountered he describes italian farmhouses olive groves and avenues of cypress trees he writes of learning to play the ukulele with his big clumsy fingers and the nightly singing and bull sessions which continued throughout the war he relates the plight of the italians who scavenged the 442nd s garbage for food and the mischief of french children who pelted the medics with singables for stars for name the medical log provide context for the letters and hana interposes letters from the
