excerpt from a new variorum edition of shakespeare the tempest it is interesting to note the uniformity of the estimate of caliban's character by the critics while all acknowledge his power and his attractiveness scornings loathings and revilings are nevertheless heaped on him indeed i can recall but one solitary voice really raised in his favour in some respects says coleridge caliban is a noble being it has become one of the commonplaces in criticicisms on the play to say that caliban is the contrast to ariel some times varied by substituting miranda for ariel and that as the tricky sprite is the type of the air and of unfettered fancy so is the abhorred slave typical of the earth and of all brutish appetites the detested hag seed is then dismissed blistered all over with expressions of abhorrence and with denunciations of his vileness which any print of goodness will not take is there then nothing to be said in favour of caliban is there really and truly no print of goodness in him kindly nature never wholly deserts her offspring nor does shakespeare we may be very sure that he who knew so well that there is always some soul of goodness in things evil would not have abandoned even caliban without infusing into his nature some charm which might be observingly distilled out why is it that caliban's speech is always rhythmical there is no character in the play whose words fall at times into sweeter cadences if the eolian melodies of the air are sweet the deep bass of the earth is no less rhythmically resonant we who see caliban only in his prime and a victim of heredity full grown are apt to forget the years of his childhood and of his innocency when prospero fondled him stroked him and made much of him and miranda taught him to speak and with the sympathetic instinct of young girlhood interpreted his thoughts and endowed his purposes with words when caliban says that it was his mistress who showed him the man in the moon with his dog and his bush what a picture is unfolded to us of summer nights on the enchanted island where how ever quiet lies the landscape in the broad moonlight every hill and brook and standing lake and grove is peopled with elves and on the shore overlooking the yellow sands where fairies foot it fealty sits the young instructress deciphering for the misshapen slave at her feet the features of the full orb moon with such a teacher in such hours would it be possible for caliban even were he twice the monster that he is to resist at the most impressible age the subtle influence of the atmosphere of poetry which breathed in every nook and corner of the enchanted island the wonder is not that he ever after speaks in rhythm the wonder would be if he did not about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works collaborative consumption is a peer to peer p2p exchange of goods and services facilitated by online platforms this phenomenon is driven by technologies that make it easier and cheaper to redistribute and share the use of existing but underutilized private resources it is embedded in the paradigm shift in society towards access based consumption in opposition to acquisition and private individual ownership firms take on the new role of enabler of collaborative consumption by developing online platforms and smartphone apps that facilitate p2p exchanges between people in their roles of peer providers and consumers collaborative consumption is anchored to two opposite logics of consumption sharing and market exchange this results in the heart wallet paradox with its tensions between a pro social orientation and communal norms on the one hand and a for profit orientation and market norms on the other hand while diverse societal and regulatory aspects of the so called sharing economy are discussed in popular debate scholars have yet to catch up on the theoretical implications from these influences on business activities and consumer behavior this thesis aims to improve the understanding of collaborative consumption by contributing to the conceptualization of this new phenomenon as intertwined with coexisting sharing and market logics the research is based on two papers taking the perspective of the firms operating online platforms that facilitate collaborative consumption and two papers taking the perspective of the peer providers and consumers participating in p2p exchanges the context of shared mobility i e p2p car rental ridesharing is explored through three cases using interviews with online platform managers and participants in collaborative consumption participant observation a netnography a cross sectional survey of platform users and document analyses this thesis situates collaborative consumption in the access paradigm based on the temporal redistribution and monetization of private resources facilitated via online platforms while nurturing the feelings of communal belonging and the sharing ethos embedded in p2p exchanges investigating the tensions of the heart wallet paradox of collaborative consumption i highlight the opposing rationales between the sharing logic of the original nonmonetary practices initiated by grassroots communities and the market logic of platform business models i further emphasize the key function of communal identification for participants and the role of perceived sharing authenticity the pitfalls of sharewashing for firms this thesis contributes to service research by advancing the understanding of p2p exchanges and the conceptualization of collaborative consumption kollaborativ konsumtion bygger på p2p utbyte peer to peer av varor och tjänster genom online plattformar detta fenomen drivs på av teknologi som gör det enklare och billigare att dela användningen av befintliga men underutnyttjade privata resurser det är inbäddat i paradigmskiftet i samhället mot tillgångsbaserad konsumtion i motsats till privat ägande företag får en ny roll som underlättare av kollaborativ konsumtion där privatpersoner istället intar rollerna som både leverantörer och konsumenter kollaborativ konsumtion är förankrat i två motsatta logiker delning och varuutbyte detta resulterar i heart wallet paradoxen med spänningar emellan en pro social orientering som bygger på gemensamma normer och en vinstdrivande orientering baserad på marknadsnormer medan det funnits en debatt kring den så kallade delningsekonomin och dess samhälleliga och legala implikationer så har den akademiska debatten ännu ej hunnit ta fart kring dess påverkan på affärsverksamhet och konsumentbeteende avhandlingen syftar till att förbättra förståelsen av kollaborativ konsumtion genom att bidra till konceptualiseringen av detta fenomen där delningslogik och marknadslogik samexisterar avhandlingen är baserad på två artiklar som undersöker kollaborativ konsumtion från ett företagsperspektiv och två artiklar där begreppet studeras ur de deltagande individernas perspektiv kontexten shared mobility d v s privat biluthyrning samåkning undersöks i tre organisationer med hjälp av intervjuer med anställda på onlineplattformar och deltagare i kollaborativ konsumtion deltagarobservationer en nätografi en tvärsnittsundersökning av plattformsanvändare och dokumentanalyser avhandlingen placerar kollaborativ konsumtion i paradigmet kring studier av tillgång till tjänster där den temporära omfördelningen i tid och monetariseringen av privata resurser underlättas via online plattformar samtidigt som den gemensamma tillhörigheten och det delningsetos som finns inbäddat i p2p utbyten uppmuntras genom att undersöka spänningarna i heart wallet paradoxen i kollaborativ konsumtion belyser jag motsättningarna mellan delningslogiken från gräsrotsrörelsen och marknadslogiken i plattformsaaffärsmodellerna vidare diskuterar jag den centrala rollen av communal identification upplevelsen av autenticitet vid delning av resurser för kollaborativ konsumtion avhandlingen bidrar till tjänsteforskningen kring tillgång till tjänster genom en ökad förståelse av p2p utbyten och en konceptualisering av kollaborativ konsumtion
